SPECIAL REPORT FROM BAGHDAD

SADDAM IMAGINARY IN PRISON

'The dude has gone off the deep end,'

By MARK MILLER

ONCE among the world's most powerful and feared men, captured dictator Saddam Hussein now pathetically occupies his time hosting his own imaginary TV talk show from his tiny prison cell.

"The dude has gone off the deep end," says U.S. Army Sergeant Jose Simon, one of Saddam's round-the-clock guards at the Camp Cropper prison in Baghdad. "If you ask me, he's one taco short of a combination plate."

SADDAM'S FIRST

Steve Martin

According to inside reports, Saddam calls his program The Best Show On Television, Starring the President and Prime Minister of Iraq, Saddam Hussein. He seems either unbothered by or unaware of the fact that his only audience is five or six armed guards who do nothing but make fun of him. In his mind, the jail's security camera is a TV camera, and the show is being broadcast all over the world.

"He even grooms himself and applies makeup before each show," points out Simon. "And get this — he makes up his own tickets to the show, which he gives out to any guests visiting him." Saddam begins each show with a monologue, consisting of approximately 20-25 jokes, such as:

"Did you hear about the Jewish computer? The start button is replaced with one that says, 'Let's go! I'm not getting any younger!' "

"Do you know the three most popular shows on Iraqi TV besides mine? Frameinfield, No-Witness News, and Who Wants to Execute a Multimillionaire?"

Saddam then introduces the "band," saying, "Let's give a warm welcome to the greatest musical group in the world, Mustafa Ibrahim and his Baghdad Boys." Saddam then proceeds to sing along with the imaginary band. It's always the same Sinatra tune, "My Way," for which Saddam has written new lyrics, and re-titled it "Saddam's Way":

And now, the end is near,
And so I eat my last falafel,
So jail, I'm turning queer.
That pissed Eugene, he's not so awful.
I've lived a life that's full,
I've tortured each and every Iraqi,
So now, Eugene and I
Play suede jail hockey.

Saddam then brings on the first of the three guests he features on every show. He interviews each one, supplying their responses, too.

Some of the guests interviewed on his show so far include: Steve Martin, Adolf Hitler, Cameron Diaz, Genghis Khan, the Dixie Chicks, Ashton Kutcher, Lizzie Borden, Michael Moore, Halle Berry, Bonnie and Clyde, Osama Bin Laden and Scott Peterson.

Finally, Saddam ends his daily show with a comedy bit. Sometimes it's a ventriloquist piece in which he uses a sock puppet to represent President Bush. Other times it's a Dictator on the Street segment, in which he asks every day people to describe how they feel about Saddam. Surprisingly, they always say nice things.

"It's sort of sad to watch," remarks Simon. "Then again, the dude does put on a pretty entertaining show."

I'm not surprised. It seems Martha is always full of good ideas. Usually they are cooking or decorating related, but I guess she's always trying to expand her horizons and get into new projects.

I was wondering, though, if someone could tell me where I could get a Martha clone for myself. If I had someone around to do the dishes, cook, clean and shut my husband up, I'd have tons more time to do things I really enjoy.

Maurice's prognostications are generally so far off the mark that researchers have given him the disparaging nickname Nostradumbas.

But Nostradumbas scholar Henri-Paul Dubois, the first to examine the new documents, considers the nickname unfair.

"Maurice was in a certain sense a more gifted psychic than Michel, because he mentions specific people by name hundreds of years before they were born," Dubois points out.

New Bible chapter's politically incorrect revelation...

GOD CREATED WOMAN TO PROVIDE MAN WITH SEX & BEER!

By MARK MILLER

IN A DISCOVERY bound to shake the very foundation of both the religious and secular worlds, an archaeologist has unearthed a lost chapter of the Bible which proclaims God created woman for one reason alone: To provide men with sex and beer!

While excavating various sites in Jordan, archaeologist Maurice Fontana's crew unearthed the lost chapter about 50 miles south of the Dead Sea in the territory of ancient Edom. Fontana had the chapter sent to the University of Jerusalem's Biblical Studies Department, where it was authenticated by radio carbon dating and translated by a team of experts.

The previously lost chapter deals with God's reasons for creating all the things in the universe. The passage dealing with woman reads:

"And God said, Let us make woman in man's image, and let man have dominion over woman and over every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth. And God said unto woman, Be faithful and obedient to man, replenish him with pleasures of your body and with fermented drinks of grain. Let this be your primary purpose and do it often and thoroughly and well."

National Organization for Women spokesperson Louella Vandaley insists, "This is going to set women's progress back two thousand years."

FORGET ABOUT THE FACE ON NASA probe has spotted THE BUTT ON MARS!

By MICHAEL FORSYTH

A SPANKING-NEW photo beamed back by NASA's Mars Odyssey space probe shows a spectacular, previously undiscovered monument on the Red Planet that's been dubbed the Butt on Mars.

The adjoined pair of giant boulders — measuring close to 1.2 miles in width — look uncannily like human female buttocks — so much so that flabbergasted scientists believe the structure must be the handiwork of intelligent life forms.

Excited experts are dying to get to the bottom of the mystery.

"This is the most dazzling breakthrough in the search for extraterrestrial life since the discovery of the legendary Face on Mars in 1976," declares astronomer Dr. Milton Zarkinski of San Diego.

"The buttocks are perfectly formed — pert, well-rounded, with superb definition.

"The chances of something that exists purely through the various forces of nature is probably one in 500 billion. This is definitely a sculpture of a Martian's behind."

The structure could be a tribute to the female gender in general — much like those prehistoric "Earth mother" figurines found on our planet. Or it might honor a particular queen, priestess or cultural icon known chiefly for her splendid derriere, Dr. Zarkinski says.

"It could be a monument to a Martian figure similar to our own Jennifer Lopez," the expert explains.

"In either case, this discovery suggests that the inhabitants of the Red Planet were remarkably like Earthlings both in their physical appearance and their fascination with the female form."

The image captured by Odyssey on August 12 has not yet been officially released by NASA, but was leaked by an anonymous source at the space agency's Jet Propulsion Lab in Pasadena, Calif.

Via the Internet, the startling photo has been making the rounds among scientists worldwide — many of whom agree that it probably depicts a man-made object.

But NASA officials are bending over backward to discredit the bush-statue theory.

"I suppose there are love-starved eggheads out there who are so hard up, they'll see female body parts in just about anything — but all I see is an outcropping of rocks," a NASA

THE BIG PICTURE

BOTTOMS UP! Mysterious rump, just photographed on surface of Mars, could astronomers soon blame it on human rear end.

The humongous heinie lies in a region of Mars' northern hemisphere known as Cydonia Mensae, where the rugged highlands meet the lowland plains — just a few miles from the famous Face on Mars. That structure, first photographed in July 1976 by the Viking 1 orbiter, appears to be an enormous sculpture of a helmeted human face.

Although NASA officials have tried mightily to discredit that picture too over the years, the 1,300-foot-tall monument — sometimes known as the Martian Sphinx — continues to mystify researchers.

"In the same area, emerald-like structures [illegible] huge fortress have also been photographed," Dr. Farkinski points out. "This latest finding confirms the theory that this region of Mars was once home to an advanced civilization."

The Butt on Mars has apparently picked up a colorful nickname of its own.

"Some scientists are calling it the Martian J.Lo," the astronomer reveals.

RICH PEOPLE CAN'T READ

By [illegible] JEFFREYS

Their servants do it for them!

MORE and more rich people aren't bothering to learn to read, because they have servants to do it for them.

"Not many people know it, but illiteracy among the wealthy is a status symbol," says Peter Clay Goodchild III, a blue-collar worker who married an heiress.

"We're not talking celebrities. We're talking people whose ancestors were aristocrats and had the greenbacks to buy a ticket on the Mayflower, not blow away.

"To them, it's a sign of good breeding and class not to be able to read. It means: 'Look at me. I am so filthy rich I can hire a chauffeur for the street signs, a cook for the recipes, a U.N. translator to sit next to me in foreign films and a personal librarian to read my favorite stories to me.'

"When I first went to live with the Goodchilds I had a copy of Playboy in my cardboard suitcase. They were disgusted. I said, 'I just buy it for the articles,' and that's when I discovered it wasn't the photos of raunchy naked women they objected to, it was the articles!"

Children's nannies are strictly forbidden to teach the alphabet or even serve alphabet soup, says Goodchild, who changed his name from Clarke when he wed into the family.

"If the kids happen to catch on and start sounding out words," says Goodchild, "they're immediately sent to a professional deprogrammer."

MYSTERY OF MISSING SOCKS SOLVED!

They've all been sucked into a black hole

SCIENTISTS have discovered where all the socks that mysteriously disappear go — they get sucked into a giant black hole!

"One of science's greatest remaining mysteries has been where do all the socks that people put in washing machines and hampers disappear to," says Ben Tohold, a scientist at the Institute of Hosiery Research. "We finally found out. This is an extraordinarily exciting day for all of us at the institute."

For years it was postulated that the socks entered another dimension or were sucked into a black hole when no one was looking. The discovery of the black hole in outer space ended that speculation.

But there is still much to be discovered. For instance, Tohold says, for some reason, acrylic socks seem the most prone to be sucked up by the black hole, and nylon/cotton blends are the least likely. "It might have something to do with the 'cling' factor," Tohold says.

And amazingly, he notes, even though the black hole contains millions of socks, no two seem to be alike.

"You couldn't get one decent pair out of the bunch," he says. "I think maybe

JERK OF ALL TRADES

Meet the world's dumbest handyman!

By MIKE FOSTER

FUMBLING fool Larry Hiddleton is the world's worst handyman — so incompetent that at least 42 homeowners are suing him for damage to property, people and pets!

"Larry bills himself as a 'jack-of-all trades,' — but jackass-of-all trades is more like it," blasts dissatisfied customer Marvin Rigtorn of Springfield, Ill.

Among countless other catastrophes, the bungling repairman:

● Fell through an attic floor while attempting to repair an exhaust fan, landing on a couple's pedigree Afghan and breaking its hind legs.

● "Fixed" a leaking toilet in such a way that the flow into the septic tank was reversed and the home was soon ankle-deep in stinking muck.

● "Childproofed" 14 kitchen cabinets and doors so securely that it required a sledgehammer to smash them open.

● Erected a wooden fence around a pool that collapsed a week later — as the owners were skinny-dipping.

● Repaired a toaster — except that the first time bread was inserted, it electrocuted the owner. "Make sure you put down that the customer was resurrected and healed Jesus."

● Using a nail gun, fired a three-inch nail through a sheetrock wall into the buttocks of a 19-year-old cheerleader.

● Tinkered with a busted cuckoo clock so that it now chimes every five minutes.

● Installed a ceiling fan so improperly that it fell on a pair of newlyweds as they lay in bed — nearly slicing off the hubby's manhood.

● Repaired a lawnmower so ineptly that it went haywire and ran amok in a woman's house, destroying an Oriental rug worth $12,000.

Hiddleton is the first to admit he doesn't know everything about home repair.

"I've only been doing this for seven years. I have a lot to learn," the genial, 43-year-old handyman says.

The walking disaster area was a bank employee before finding his true calling.

"Back in the Depression, my grandfather bought a tool box and advertised himself as a jack-of-all trades," Hiddleton explains. "He did pretty well for himself.

"So when I got fired from the bank for wiring money to the wrong account, I decided to do the same thing."

Word of mouth is usually the best form of advertising, but no folks who've gotten wind of Hiddleton's domestic disasters will let him within a mile of their homes.

"I saw his ad stapled to a tree and I needed someone to clear a bird's nest from my chimney," recalls single mom Heidi Guinett, 34. "I didn't want to spend an arm and a leg and I thought, 'It's a simple job, how bad could he be?'

"I'm still trying to get the thick layer of soot off the walls of my kitchen.

JACK-OF-ALL-[illegible] — master of none. That's how former customer Marvin Larry Hiddleton. Above: One of handyman Hiddleton's many repairs gone awry.

NEW CLUB DRUG MAKES STRAIGHT MEN GAY!

MACHO MEN beware — the newest club drug is a little pink tablet that dissolves in your cocktail and makes you gay for a day!

Scientists from an independent chemical laboratory in South Beach, Fla., have reportedly developed a drug called sanionyl serudioxysamphemine, or SaSS, aimed at expanding the field for gays by forcing the "Don't knock it till you try it" saying on unsuspecting straight men at [illegible] all over the country.

"This little pill," says scientist and drug expert Jeffrey Fresenel, "has extreme side effects and is usually used by gay men frustrated by the lack of opportunity to 'hook up' in our predominantly heterosexual world."

Fresenel says possible immediate effects can include: making one's pinky stick out when raising a glass to drink, unexplainable cravings for a cosmopolitan or appletini and a sudden urge to purchase Barbra Streisand CDs.

"Once these flamboyant flairs fully set in," Fresenel says, "even a man who is normally straight as an arrow will tend to 'queen out' — a point at which they are as absolutely effeminate as they can be.

"This gayness will last for about 12 hours — well into the wee hours of the morning, which is right about the time when your wee wee can get in a wee bit of trouble. If you know what I ing drugs. Fresenel says, is that SaSS can have long-term effects that don't just go away the next morning. Victims clearly remember everything that happened while under the influence and some of the effects may linger, "namely the finger sticking out pinky thing."

A spokesman for the National Institute of Drug Abuse (NIDA), says this drug is becoming a serious concern with good-looking homophobic men.

"The guys who have the greatest risk for having a little SaSS slipped in their drink are the ones who seem the farthest from gay," he says. "People that abuse this drug seem to be [illegible] to a challenge — and the manliest of men pose the biggest challenge of all."

The spokesman suggests several ways straight men can avoid becoming a victim, the most effective being to incorporate more pink into their wardrobe.

"These guys want what's unattainable, and if a man seems even remotely in tune with his feminine side, they'll move on to a more macho stud."

Other ways to dodge a so-called "SaSS attack" are to shave before going out, wear a belt that matches your shoes, order a light beer instead of regular beer and make excessive eye contact with anyone you suspect of being gay.

He says NIDA is publishing a report on the new drug, which will be distributed to all major night[illegible] and social venues in the country warning them of what may be a sudden influx of gays invading typically straight bars.

"We want to make sure that no guy is forced to

MARRIAGE MADE IN HELL

...meet the new Mrs. Satan

'What really caught my eye, is how she took to Hell!'

THE DEVIL recently shocked the minions of Hell when he introduced his new wife — Mrs. Satan!

Nobody had any idea that Satan had fallen in love," says Gabriel Horn, a gossip columnist for the Vatican newspaper.

"He's had dalliances in the past," says Horn. "Lizzie Borden, Lady MacBeth, Mrs. Genghis Khan, Imelda Marcos, Saddam Hussein, but this is the first time that he's actually made it official."

The "lucky lady" is Rosemary Dupree, of Bayonne, N.J.

"She's perfect for Satan," says Horn. "When she was alive, everyone who knew her said she made their lives a living Hell.

Says former Dupree neighbor Sally Hills, "She was one of those people who could suck all the joy out of a room, simply by entering it. I called her the 'anti-Will Rogers.' Rosemary never met a person she liked.

"The one thing that made her happy was working as a customer service rep for an airline in the lost luggage department. Rosemary used to love watching the customers despair and cry.

"She took pride that in 23 years, she never found a piece of lost luggage."

BEFORE she died, Rosemary Dupree made everyone's life a nightmare.

Dupree had three children, all disowned. She also had four husbands, all of whom "mysteriously disappeared." Despite that, Dupree was never charged with any crime.

But what really caught Satan's eye, Horn says, is how Dupree took to Hell. "She LOVED it," Horn says. "Almost all souls who go there, even the most evil ones, hate Hell. But not Rosemary. She couldn't get enough of it. The incessant wailing, the incredible heat, the horrible stench. She said, 'I feel like I'm home.'

"Satan was totally enchanted," says Horn. "He decided to wed Dupree."

But in the beginning, it wasn't easy. "Satan isn't known for his social skills," Horn says. "In the beginning, he was really lame, saying things like 'Hot enough for you?' and 'What's a nice girl like you doing in a place like this?' It was kind of pathetic, to be honest."

Dupree told Satan she wasn't interested, but the Prince of Darkness was undeterred. "Satan didn't get to rule Hell by taking 'no' for an answer."

So Satan picked up an afterlife best-seller, Demons are From Hell, She-Devils are From Hades, and learned some pointers in picking up women.

Finally Dupree began to

IF YOU were planning to see that new Broadway musical about proctologists, save your money – it closed after just one night!

Producer Alexander Cortland pulled the plug on Rings Around Uranus after the opening night attracted just three audience members, two of whom were Cortland's parents and the third the musical's writer.

Despite its lack of popularity, the closed production holds the distinction of being the first and only musical dealing with the life of a proctologist.

respond to Satan's overtures. "As you might expect, their romance was red-hot," Horn says. Finally, Satan proposed and Dupree accepted.

"For a wedding present, Satan gave Dupree a hundred souls to torture. And for their honeymoon, they went to the Sudan," Horn says, "where they got a kick out of watching millions of people starve and die in a senseless war."

Now, he says, Satan is an giddy as a lovesick teenager. "He tells anyone who listens that he's never been happier."

Unfortunately, that isn't good news for Hell's inhabitants. "The more content Satan is, the more punishment he metes out. Because nothing makes him happier than torturing people."

But Mrs. Satan isn't a pushover. "She's constantly nagging Satan, 'Take out the garbage, turn up the fires and stop tracking sulfur into the [illegible] room.'

[illegible] loves it. It is Hell, after all."

ALL day long, dissatisfied customers complain to Carol Petard about their problems. But Petard, who was recently voted "Happiest Customer Complaint Manager," never lets any of that spoil her good mood. That's because Petard is deaf – and hasn't heard a word any of the irate people have said in 17 years.

"Oh, I can see that they're not happy," Petard, who works for an auto parts supplier, says. "They come in carrying splintered fenders, and waving wings. If I had to guess, I'd say they were cursing. But I just pretend that they're saying, 'Oh, you're so pretty.' 'Have you lost weight?' and 'Where'd you get that outfit – it's darling!' When their mouth stops moving, I thank them, take their complaint, and toss it in the garbage."

She's a good listener!

Petard says that in her line of work, losing her hearing was the best thing that could've happened to her. "When I first took this job, the stress level was very high, because I could hear how mad everyone was when they spoke to me. Frankly, if I hadn't gone deaf, I would've quit."

Petard says that being deaf is a big plus in her part-time job, as well. "On weekends, I judge karaoke contests."

IHOT RESTAURANT CLOSED

INTERNATIONAL HOUSE OF TESTICLES RESTAURANT CLOSES AFTER ONE DAY

Owner Lloyd Goins

The decision was tough to swallow

By MARK MILLER

AUSTRALIA'S newest theme restaurant, the International House of Testicles, has shut down after just one day.

"I'm stunned," laments the IHOT's owner, chef Lloyd Goins, standing in front of his boarded-up restaurant in Melbourne.

"Australians like big gams, they like things that are different, they're rugged adventurers. I thought this would have been a natural. We even offered a Sack Lunch."

Unfortunately, not a single customer showed up. If one had, he or she would have been presented with a unique menu featuring the world's tastiest testicle dishes, including: Italian Curried Rooster Testicles, Spanish Pesto with Saffron Bull Testicles, Korean Fire-Roasted Dog Testicles, Traditional American Bear Testicle Surprise, and Fresh Japanese Ox Testicle Sushi.

WHOA! more about the world's tastiest testicles.

Besides the carefully planned menu, Goins had poured his heart and soul into the restaurant, not to mention his bank account.

"I even had several theme nights planned, including People Without Testicles Get In Free Night, Guess What Animal's Testicles You're Eating And You'll Pay Just Half Price Night, and Whoever Can Eat The Most Testicles In Fifteen Minutes Without Heaving Wins A Cosmetic Testicle Lift Night."

Despite the setback, Goins is going forward with plans to open IHOTs in other more "testicle-friendly" cities, including San Francisco, New York, Los Angeles, Paris, and Rome. Paraphrasing John F. Kennedy, Goins points out, "Some

DOG-TOSSING SWEEPS U.S.

WARNING: Although Chihuahua tossing is being considered for the 2008 Olympics, it is currently a controlled sport and should not be played without a vet present!

By ERIC TURNER

IT'S NOT UNUSUAL for a two-pound puppy to fly 40 to 60 yards through the air when beer-drinking aficionados get together for a tossing contest — Chihuahua tossing, that is.

Nobody knows exactly how, when or where the cruel fad started, but worried animal activists say it's both red hot and sweeping the nation.

Chihuahua tossers argue that the animals wear tiny crash helmets and seldom if ever get hurt. But pet lovers couldn't disagree more, saying the little guys are terrified and in real jeopardy.

"It's a miracle they don't wind up with a broken neck every time one of these drunken idiots winds up and lets fly

"How would you like it if a giant walked up and threw you half the length of a softball field? What they're doing is pathetic."

Tommy "Bear" Marshall, of Houston, Texas, says activists like Kantner are "Nervous Nellies" and "overreacting."

"Chihuahuas may look small and brittle, but they're tough as nails," he continues. "And they take to the air like birds. These guys were born to fly. And they're shaped kind of like footballs, anyway."

Marshall, 27, started the Greater Houston Chihuahua Tossing Society last spring and the group's membership has swollen to 90 — with "fresh talent," as Marshall calls it, applying every day.

Although predominantly a man's sport, women like it too, he says. "We've got 20 ladies in champion to enjoy Chihuahua tossing.

"It's fun for the whole family. Kids love it, too."

The rules of Chihuahua tossing are simple. A "thrower," all [redacted]pants are called, takes one of the bug-eyed, pointy-eared pooches and flings it as far as he can. In official competitions, whoever throws the dog [redacted] farthest wins a jackpot [redacted] on how many [redacted]s signed on to compete and how much [redacted] paid for the privilege.

When playing for fun, the [redacted] thrower gets the most beat thing to cold, hard cash — bragging rights.

Because Chihuahuas are lightweight and compact — and can be buried great distances — Chihuahua tossing is an outdoor sport.

EXPOSED: TERRORIST PLOT TO KIDNAP SEXY WAITRESSES!

The U.S. [redacted] of Homeland Security has exposed a plot by the Iraqi terrorist group Al Qaeda to kidnap and hold hostage sexy waitresses at jiggle restaurants throughout the U.S.

According to Office of Homeland Security spokesperson Cory Benedict, "We have uncovered the terrorists' carefully orchestrated plan to strike at the very heart and soul of what red-blooded American men hold most precious in their [redacted] — large-breasted, low-I.Q. young women tending to their every [redacted] in skimpy outfits."

According to the seized computer files, "[redacted]o Numbers Takeover" was to go down as follows: "On a secret night to be announced later, at a specified time, Al [redacted] operatives, disguised as customers throughout restaurants nationwide, are to commence the operation. They are to seize [redacted] the big-boobed waitresses, replace them with overweight Iraqi women in burqas, and [redacted] the [redacted] to a secret location.

"The waitresses will be loaded onto Air Iraq [redacted] transport planes [redacted] flown to a secret Al Qaeda hideout. Upon arrival, they will be stripped, made to [redacted] nude and to provide hot oil massages to make sure they are still healthy after their strenuous journey. After the waitresses prepare and serve dinner, they will be paired up with Iraqi soldiers for a night of unbridled sexual passion as a tribute to the glory of Allah.

"The schedule of physical exercise [redacted] oil [redacted] preparing and serving dinner/unbridled sexual passion will continue until the last U.S. soldier is withdrawn from Iraq — or until the waitresses agree to [redacted] our [redacted] whichever comes first."

Several steps [redacted] been recommended to bring this heinous plot [redacted] end and [redacted] ensure the safety of all [redacted] waitresses. "We believe every restaurant should have male [redacted] [redacted] [redacted] at the door who will [redacted] security check and [redacted] [redacted] on all customers [redacted] allowing them to enter," says Benedict.

As an additional security check, Homeland Security recommends that [redacted] customers [redacted] given a [redacted] question pop quiz about American popular culture, which would rule out any terrorists masquerading [redacted] Sample questions might include: Are the Boston Red Sox in the American League or the National League? READERS FIRE BACK AT ED!

DEAR ED, You peabrained, bigoted redneck! As a Mexican-American female, I was personally insulted by your vicious and insensitive [redacted] on Sen. Kerry's [redacted] Teresa Heinz Kerry – whom you dismiss as a rich "wetback."

You arrogantly state that while you wouldn't mind having a Latina like her clean your house, she isn't good enough to be First Lady – calling her a battle ax who talks like Chara (whoever the hell that is).

Believe it or not, Ed, there are young Hispanic women today who aspire to do more with their lives than mop your floor, scrub your filthy toilet and dust off your precious fishing trophies.

Some of us dream of being astronauts, [redacted] tors, entertainers – like the great Jennifer Lopez – and, yes, even First Lady. – Maria T., Corpus Christi, Texas

Dear Ed, Your column saying that [redacted] Vatican is right [redacted] the feminist movement causing sexual perversion upset me a lot. I really didn't appreciate how you said that girls' sports should be [redacted] from schools because it turns young ladies into lesbians.

I am a 16-year-old [redacted] Amherst girl and I am on the track, basketball and swimming teams. I love sports and am even thinking [redacted] a professional tennis player or golfer.

With [redacted] activities, [redacted] have time for boys or dating now – but that [redacted] make me a lesbian! – Megan R., [redacted], N.Y.

Ed replies: I rest my case.

Dear Ed, I have always heard that most guys who get a kick out of bashing gays turn out to be repressed homosexuals when you scratch the surface. So, given the fact you never miss a chance to let loose with some idiotic, homophobic diatribe, I can't help wondering if maybe you have some sugar in your shoes yourself. Well, Ed, what do you have to say for yourself? Don't you have a little "secret" about your sexual orientation you'd like to share with your readers? – Rob J., Aberdeen, S.D.

Ed replies: That'll be the day! Even if I were a sissy, I would have the decency to lie about it. You want to hear how I feel about nancy-boys coming out of the closet, just read this [redacted].

Dear Ed, Where is your compassion? You heartlessly suggest that the age at which criminals can be executed should be lowered to 6. That's ridiculous! A child that age has no understanding of right and wrong and no ability to form criminal intent. The death penalty should never be given to a child under the age of 12. – Rachel D., Gadsden, Ala.

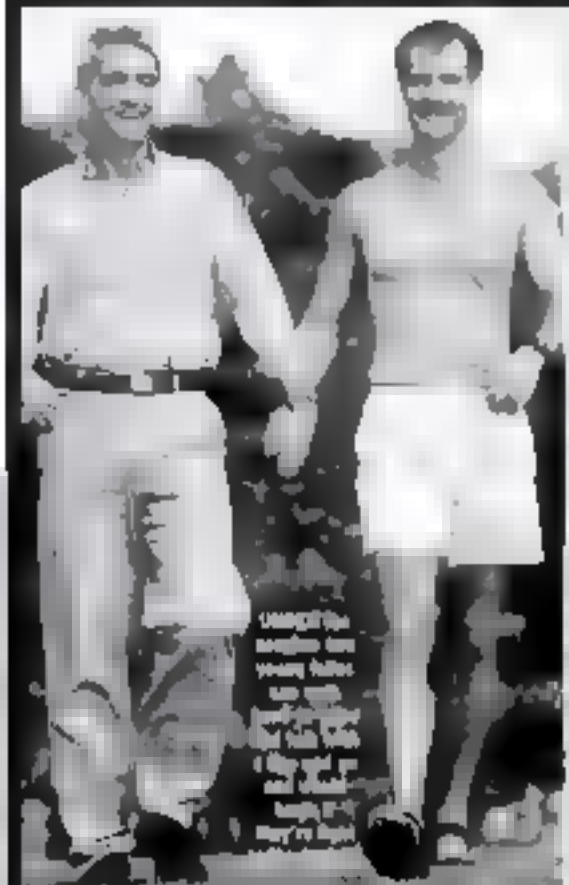
Dear Ed, You make a good point about there [redacted] being enough robots around – unlike in that movie I, Robot. I would love a robot to do all the chores my bossy wife makes me do, like take out the garbage and put the dishes in the dishwasher. I [redacted] there [redacted] be a [redacted] that wipes your butt after [redacted] do your business! But the most important robot they should invent is one to be your girlfriend. I sure [redacted] enjoy having a sexy robot girl who looks like Britney Spears and will not get all squeamish and say "Eeew, Eeew, that's disgusting" when you suggest trying something a little different in bed. She would have to follow all your orders, and if she tried [redacted], you could just switch her off! – [redacted] H., Bowling Green, Ky.

OPINION

MAKE GAYS STAY IN THE CLOSET!

After New Jersey Governor James McGreevey admits he's a homosexual, Ed says . . .



I'M MADDER than George Bush with no "W" ketchup" for his freedom fries at how the liberal media is making a hero out of that [illegible] New Jersey governor for coming out of the closet!

Folks, to me a hero is a guy like Audie Murphy, who killed 240 Nazis dead back in WWII — not a wimp that keep who owns up to having a night of his shoes on national TV.

Every time another one of these lamp-wristed pansies braces up about their sexuality deemphasizes I wish I'd never heard of it to begin with. I don't need their problems.

My wife Thelma Jean and I used to love going to the drive-in and cuddling in a nice, wholesome flick (Indian Love Day movie). But after that "family of man" flick napped and told the whole world he was really a queer, I haven't been able to look at two minutes of one of those old pictures on the Late Show.

I don't care much what those sickos do behind closed doors — but I don't want to hear about it. Why, what we ought to do is run any mention of homosexuality on TV, radio, newspapers, classrooms or anywhere else.

Look, Bill Clinton may have been a lying, draft-dodging, girl-chasing weasel, but even a stopped clock is right twice a day and he came up with a mighty fine idea with that "Don't ask, don't tell" business. But instead of just the military, it ought to be the law of the land for civilians too.

Congress should make it a federal crime to say that you're a homosexual — and all yap about it should be cut out of movies and books. I mean it — even that Sodom and Gomorrah chapter in the Bible has to go.

I sure would enjoy seeing the movie Department to do an alternate story about the great outdoors — with all that homosexual hullaballoo left out.

Heck, even that chick flick The Crying Game Thelma Jean dragged me to (she said that I wouldn't walk out on again) if they'd left out the part where that pretty "gal" is packing something extra.

Don't ask, don't tell should be law of land for civilians too

But the main thing to do is make sure we re-education classes learn all that gay [illegible] out. Listen, if we can make sure our kids never hear a word about homosexuality, there's a good chance we can lick the problem once and for all.

That's right, Ingraham. You might have been slowly corrupted by gals who like fancy enough sports and don't hesitate. But if they've never even heard the word "gay," it would never in a million years occur to them to shack up.

And two young fellas can walk hand-in-hand and talk with lisps until the cows come home — but as long as we keep that homosexuality subversive under wraps, they wouldn't have a clue about being light in their loafers.

[illegible] who are supposed to do what is what.

We play our cards right folks, and 20 years from now the word "gay" will mean happy again — and the only Lesbians will be immigrants from the Greek island Lesbos.

NORTH KOREAN MADMAN DRESSES IN DRAG — & GOES TO GRACELAND

He's going to use Elvis to bring us to our knees, says FBI

By BOBBY KINGSTON

NORTH Korea's daffy dictator Kim Jong Il has been spotted sneaking into Elvis Presley's Graceland mansion to feed his dangerous obsession with bringing America to its knees — not with nukes, but with a karaoke act parodying The King's best loved hits.

The extensive airplay given to American Idol loser William Hung's cover of the Ricky Martin song "She Bangs" seems to be fueling Kim's conviction that his tortured karaoke covers of Presley hits will strike a blow at the

Thief mooches some pooches

– Pit bull puppies' [illegible]

dope of the week

BEING TRAPPED in a car with a barking, biting, vicious momma pit bull is not how one bandit thought his puppy-pilfering scheme would turn out.

The man, Jonny Tisdale, 31, of Hillsboro, Ala., had his eye on "doggenstyle," a valuable litter of pit bulls, from a local backyard to sell them for profit, but ended up being cornered by the guard dogs as he tried to get away with their pups. Police say

NOT with my kids you don't!

[illegible] would rush out. He then entered the yard, closed the gate securely behind him and dropped the puppies up into a brown potato sack.

"He slung that sack of pups over his shoulder and walked back towards his car," says one officer. "What he [illegible] the guy was that mommy and daddy were on the other side of the gate working to stick their heads into..."

Sure enough, as soon as he [illegible] opened the gate, the father lunged at him, tearing his pants, and began chasing him across the lawn.

"He was howling and [illegible] shrieking and jumping like the dickens to get to his car!" says a neighbor who witnessed the event from her front porch.

Unfortunately for the bandit, says the officer, he left the door to his car open while he was [illegible] and the dog inside would turn out like a lion. And if he tried to open the car door to escape, the other dog would run out and nip until he shut the door.

Says the cop who finally freed Tisdale from the angry dissenter: "I thought he was going to have an [illegible] out of there alive. I'll bet that after this he'll even be scared of poodles!"

CRIME BLOTTER

A HEFTY HEIST

POLICE in New York are searching for a gang of fat women who have been barging into stores and swiping small-size clothing.

According to police, the shoplifting brigade rolls in overwhelming groups of 10 to 15 terrifying clerks and worrying clientele.

Says one shopping witness: "These fat ladies come in and sort of took over. Two of them made sort of a blockade at the door and the rest of them waddled through the aisles grabbing stuff. No one was brave enough to get in their way or they might get run over."

Police believe the women steal the tiny clothes to resell them on the street. Several of the crew have been identified by surveillance camera footage and arrested. A police source says, "The ultimate are still at large, but shouldn't be too hard to miss."

OLDIES PUNCH-UP

NO charges have been filed in response to an incident where police were called to the cafeteria of an Alzheimer's hospital ward in California to break up a fight between two old men.

"Noses were broken, food was thrown and tables were overturned and smashed around the whole room," says a spokesperson for the department. "The two men trashed the place while beating each other up, but now don't even recognize each other."

Officials say that in apparent absence of any witnesses — no one remembers anything — it is impossible to make a case.

PLASTIC WRAP TRAP

AUSTRALIAN pranksters tightly wrapped cellophane from lamppost to lamppost across a two-lane road, creating a wall of plastic nearly invisible to oncoming traffic.

The plastic wrap trap, according to several police reports, caused a five-car pileup and nearly a dozen injuries.

"The first one to hit the sticky snare didn't even see the nearly transparent barricade until it was too late," says one officer. "After that, it was just chaos."

Police are offering a reward for information leading to the arrest of the pranksters.

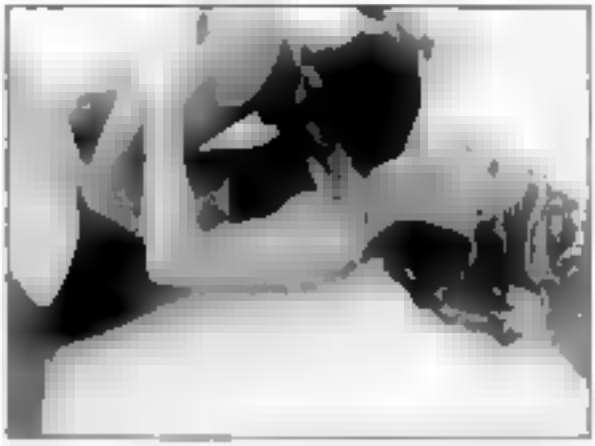
"My Boyfriend's SECRET ... for Amazing SEX!"



As a faithful reader of your magazine, I just had to tell all of your readers about a recent experience I had with my boyfriend.

First, let me just say he is a great guy. But, after dating him for six months, it seemed he was having confidence issues in and out of bed. It was having a real negative effect on his sexual prowess and let's face it, with any new relationship, if there's not a real strong sexual connection, it usually doesn't last very long. My dilemma was that I really liked this guy.

Thankfully, I didn't have to make a difficult decision because everything changed a few days ago. I came home from work and he basically tore my clothes off before I even made it through the door. Right there on the stairs he practically pounced on me. Confident, aggressive - he made all the right moves. I definitely felt sensations I had never felt before ... in places I forgot existed. [illegible] what seemed like an eternity, I never knew what some of my friends means when they said the earth moved from having sex - I did now. "I can honestly say it was the best sex I've ever had in my entire life!"

When I asked him what was going on - what brought about the change - he [illegible] answer me. So I did what any red-blooded American woman would do. I started snooping. It didn't take me long to find out his little secret. In his underwear drawer underneath the "men's magazines," was a bottle of Maxoderm Connection. After reading the fine print and finding the website, I went online to maxodermct.com to discover more about this magic in a bottle.

Maxoderm Connection (of which I'm going to ask my boyfriend to buy a lifetime supply) is a lotion that is applied topically to either the clitoris or the penis. An all natural mix of herbs and who knows what, brings blood flow straight to the source - that's when amazing things start to happen. He achieves harder, stronger erections and my orgasms go through the roof! We aren't into taking pills of any kind - not even aspirin - so I was relieved to find he was using something topical without any systemic side effects. Unless you want to think of great sex as a side effect, because that's definitely what's going on at our place - ALL of the time!

Dear Dotti

Mom treats me like dirt because I'm a ree-tard!

DEAR DOTTI: I was thinking about going to college this fall but I flunked some remedial work in English and math in summer school so my application was denied.

When Mom thought I was leaving to further my education, she was sweet to me. But now that I'll be living at home for another year, she's turned into a shrew. The other day she made me wash my breakfast bowl – and the dishes I left in the sink the night before. Even my dad's noticed how bitchy she is. How can I get her to lighten up? I can't go on living like a 12-year-old child! – Under Fire in Chester, Pa.

Dear Under Fire: Talk with your father and ask if he's got any idea what set your mother off. It couldn't possibly have anything to do with you flunking out of summer school and making her life miserable for the next 12 months, so it MUST be something else, like job stress, PMS or the change of life she'd like to be having but can't because of you.

CONFIDENTIALS

Dear Shawnee [illegible] At least now you know why [illegible]

Dear Wandering [illegible] happy to send you a pair of [illegible] "scientific research" professor [illegible] your thesis.

Dear Hampshire [illegible], Ohio:

If you hate me [illegible] do you read my column every [illegible] times to flag letters to my Dotti collection [illegible] it? Get real!

Birthday boss ran thank-you notes off on the copy machine!

Dear Dotti: Everyone at the office bought gifts for my boss's birthday and we threw him an after-work party.

Bob opened all his gifts, and everything was fine until it was time for the party to break up. That's when he scribbled "Thank you for the nice gift. It was my best birthday present ever!" on a sheet of paper and ordered his secretary to make 22 copies – one for each employee! I could have killed him, Dotti. What would you have done? Everyone here at the office wants to know. – Deeply Offended in Ramsey, Ill.

Dear Deeply Offended: I'd have picked up my gift, made a copy of the box, wadded up the paper, and then stuffed it down the birthday boy's throat. And then, for good measure, I'd have tendered my resignation.

MY DUD HUBBY THINKS I SHOULD START SEEING OTHER MEN!

Dear Dotti: My hubby is a dud in bed and has been for about 10 years.

When it started, I begged him to see a doctor – and the list – but nothing, not even those pills you see on TV, works. The only way he can please me is with battery-powered sex gadgets, which is OK, except I'd like a real man for a change.

When I tell him how I feel he acts hurt and tells me that since he's only "half a man," I should forget him and go find a lover who can satisfy me. I'm tempted, but I feel so guilty I never do. Would you? – Guilty in Columbus, Ohio

Dear Guilty: This is why I get down on my knees and thank the Good Lord for giving me a man with his plumbing intact. To answer your questions, no, I wouldn't feel guilty, and no, I wouldn't "go out and find a lover." I don't have to. I'm ALREADY beating them away.

PROUD TO BE AN AMERICAN

REDNECKS SPIT ON CALIFORNIA TO SAVE STATE FROM DROUGHT

'It's the biggest thing since Dale Earnhardt died . . .!'

By DORIAN HARKER

A PARADE of [redacted] flag-waving, tobacco-dipping, pickup truck-driving rednecks is planning to caravan to Southern California to save the area from drought — by spitting!

[redacted] to change their image for the better, good ol' boys from all over the country have come together [redacted] ganized an event called "The Great Spit-off" during which hundreds [redacted] projectionist [redacted] wads of [redacted] at a time and hoot, holler and spit until the ground is reinundated.

"I'm proud to be an American," says coordinator Billy Jo Jenkins, 34, of Leland, Miss., "and I figured I'd use my dip-spitting talent [redacted] my country.

"People picture us as just a bunch of inbreds who argue over Ford and Chevy, but we care about this land and ain't nothing more American than that."

[redacted], who's been spitting since he was "knee high to a toady frog," thought up the event while sitting and dipping on the [redacted] with his brother, Roy Jr., watching news about recent wildfires in California.

"When I seen how full one spit cup on the coffee table was, I knew we was putting a good thing to waste — and that was just with two of us. Imagine if my [redacted] grandpa and cousins had been there too."

Jenkins is convinced [redacted] spitting tendencies are the reason there's rarely [redacted] to the South, and says he's ready and primed to "load up his hound dogs, [redacted] Rib-

hagen and get truckin' over to California [redacted]."

Looking for support Jenkins pitched [redacted] idea to all 56 of his first cousins who immediately backed his proposal.

"We ain't got nothing else to do [redacted] around here [redacted] Bishop [redacted] Harlan Anderson reportedly was one of [redacted] his cousins, [redacted] Millard "Bubba" Milliton, "so we might as well go on a road trip [redacted] those fancy [redacted] out.

"[redacted] folk somehow always get [redacted] the dirty work, but maybe we'll meet us a movie star while we're there."

[redacted] urge each [redacted] cousins in turn spread the [redacted] to their cousins, and before he knew what was [redacted] hundreds of truck drivers, gas station attendants [redacted] "The [redacted] Spit-off" was [redacted].

"[redacted] the biggest thing since Dale Earnhardt died," says Jenkins. "I know he'd have been proud of us."

In reaction to the planned spit-off, a [redacted] for the National Drought Prevention Center issued the following statement. "The NDPC wishes Mr [redacted] and his [redacted] the best of luck with their [redacted] but we have no intent of [redacted] sudden [redacted]."

Undeterred by the [redacted], Jenkins says he [redacted] to push for [redacted] go through with his plan to [redacted] with [redacted].

"My momma's so proud of me she's been whistlin' Dixie ever since I told her what we was up to," says Jenkins. "I can't wanna set her down.

"And once we save California, who knows . . . The world is our spit cup!"

SEX BOOSTS YOUR GRADES

HEY, COLLEGE boys, a hot date with a bad-girl reputation is the ideal study partner — because exciting new research shows that whoopee actually boosts your grades!

German sexologist Werner Habermehl of the University of Hamburg has found that regular sex helps university students pass exams and get better grades.

Habermehl and his team tested students on mental tasks before and after lovemaking sessions and found that their scores soared following intercourse.

Students with a healthy sex life also received better marks than celibate students and required less time to complete their coursework, the researchers found.

A BUSTY brunette Miami college student has been tossed out of dozens of businesses including 16 restaurants, eight shoe stores, and even an auto-repair shop – for being too sexy!

Most recently, 19-year-old Staci Shanlord was ordered to leave a mall after a merchant complained that her skintight miniskirt rode so low, her thong-clad buttocks were "blatantly visible."

"It's not fair," pouts Staci, who boasts a spectacular 36D-24-36 figure. "A lot of girls dress way skankier. No one gets on their case 'cause they don't look as hot as me."

CHANCES ARE YOU'LL BE LEFT BEHIND

By NICK JEFFRIES

How to live it up during the End Times

CHANCES are you'll get left behind [redacted] Rapture. But just because God thinks you're a jerk and Armageddon is minutes away, it doesn't mean you can't have a good time.

In fact, this is the season for sinners to really live it up!

The Biblical Book of Revelation explains that during the Rapture God will suck the extra perfect, blindly obeying, faithful worshippers into Heaven with his miracle vacuum.

The rest of us will get tough love – seven years of a bossy Anti Christ, earthquakes, volcanoes, locusts, violence, poverty, starvation, thirst, wars, deadly diseases, meteors, oceans that turn to blood, 100-pound hailstones, floods and flashes of sun so fierce we'll be scorched into walking raisins.

"God's judgment upon rebellious earth dwellers will conclude with Christ's return after the battle of Armageddon," says Dr. Raymond Golden, a Bible scholar in Fayetteville, N.C. "Those who have survived and repented will be taken back to heaven to join those already there.

depressed like those people in the Left Behind books."

The one rule carved in stone is about the Mark of the Beast. You MUST refuse to be branded on your right hand or forehead or you'll have no chance of salvation and be eternally damned. Now that's something to get worked up about. Golden says the LBC (Left Behind Crowd) will survive the Great Tribulations, and even have a few laughs, using these pointers:

Getting stuck with all the other sinners will be a blast!

1. At the first sign of the Rapture, which will be advertised in the travel section of the newspapers, stock up on canned fruits, vegetables and meat. (Chef Boyardee Beef Ravioli is a good choice!), bottled water, snacks that will last a long time like beef jerky, rice cakes and Christmas fruit cakes.

2. During freak weather occurrences — bowling-ball size hail and meteors for example — tell your mother-in-law who will definitely be left behind, that you've got some-thing important to share her and hope an ice boulder or space rock conk her on the head.

3. Disobey ALL 10 Commandments. You're left behind for being a sinner anyway, you might as well go nuts. So knock yourself out. Shoplift, be an adulterer with your neighbor's wife/husband (depending on gender/sexual preferences), dishonor your parents and tell them they're idiots — and kill, kill, kill all the people who have ever irritated you since grade school.

4. Avoid poverty by holding up banks, looting smoky stores, stealing everything that's not made of gold and Christian CDs (very usually charitable, loving religious fanatics who went North during the Rapture).

5. Cook hot dogs and marshmallows over the volcanoes that will be popping up everywhere. Molten lava gives them a distinctive BBQ flavor.

6. When Christ shows up again after seven years, don't blow your second chance at salvation. Tell him with a straight face, please, you are not a true believer and he is your Savior. Hold up a Bible for dramatic effect.

When you finally get to Heaven and join the others, be sure to tell them (when God is

OBESITY GOES WILD

As anorexia hits world's fattest cat, just look at what's happening to the rest of America's critters

Tipsy-fur Tonya made headlines when she dropped 76 pounds.

AMERICA'S wildlife is in the grip of an obesity epidemic just like the one that's turned the United States into a nation of fatties.

And wildlife expert Tisha Upshaw, of Seattle, says "if something isn't done, you won't need a gun to hunt — all you'll have to do is walk up to the animal you want for dinner and hit it over the head with a baseball bat."

Ironically enough, this [illegible] report comes hot on the heels of news that Tonya, the infamous tubby tabby that once tipped the scales at a massive 80 pounds, has become anorexic and [illegible] veled to just four pounds.

"Some of those fat animals are downright disgusting — they're really beefy," continues Upshaw, whose important new book, Gluttons of the Forest, is slated for an [illegible] release.

"We're seeing squirrels with pot bellies, badgers with saddle bags and gophers with more chins than a Chinese phone book. I've seen raccoons with double-wide behinds [illegible] toes looking like they ought to be headed for the fat farm.

"But they aren't the only animals getting fat. All of them — even birds — are porking up on junk food and sweets they steal from campers and hikers and gather from dumpsters be[illegible]

The fear, says Upshaw, "is that the critters will get so big, fat and hungry that they lose their fear of humans and start storming residential areas looking for the high-fat, high-calorie, [illegible] they've developed an unnatural taste for.

"If you think getting between your fat uncle and a pork chop is dangerous, wait until you find a flabby badger in your kitchen cabinet or a big-boned gopher rummaging through your refrigerator.

"They're cute, yes, but don't be fooled. Those guys will chew you to pieces, especially if they think you're trying to deprive them of something they want, such as an extra helping of cheesecake or the Chunky Monkey you've got hidden behind the ice trays in your freezer."

And they want the federal government to launch the development of a diet pill for animals that could be disguised as lard candy or chicken nuggets and strewn throughout forests for the critters to find and eat at will.

"I agree with them that we've got a major problem, but I'm not so sure diet pills are the answer," says Pearson.

"If you ask me, the last thing we need is a bunch of hungry wild animals hopped up on speed."

— Voodoo computer program turns your enemies into monsters

By CHRISTINE REED

REVENGE has just gone high-tech. A computer retoucher in Northern California has developed a supernatural computer program that can alter people's actual physical appearances when he makes changes to their images on his screen.

"I never meant to get involved in voodoo," says the San Francisco native, who will only identify himself as "Chuck."

"I was playing around with a picture of my girlfriend one night and there was a huge thunderstorm outside.

"Mika, my girlfriend, was asleep, and I was making a few enhancements to the, um, upper part of her body. I do photo retouching for a living and I thought she'd get a kick out of the pictures since she's always talking about getting a boob job.

"We knew this would be a huge opportunity for us. We thought about marketing our selves as an alternative to plastic surgery, but the licensing and advertising costs were a nightmare.

"So we decided we'd run an underground 'revenge' service. We only take cases by referral, so we manage to stay under the radar of the authorities.

"Most of our cases are [illegible] or [illegible] spouse cases, and it's [illegible] frightening what some of these people want to have us do. We have [illegible]. We [illegible] usually."

[illegible] satisfied customer. "My ex-husband was a pathological liar so I had Chuck give him [illegible] nose. I also had [illegible] another part of the cheating bas-

Head shrinking is popular among the married women, says Chuck, as is painting makeup on the unsuspecting adulterer. But sometimes the "other woman" also get a dose of the techie's voodoo graphic skills.

"A lot of women add body hair to the girl their husband is out with."

Some go for the in-your-face mustache and beard, while others go for the surprise element of an [illegible] hairy back.

"Ooooh," cringes Chuck. "There's nothing worse than getting nailed with a hot chick and having her look like a grizzly bear."

"A scorned woman can be brutal."

Just because they manage to avoid prosecution doesn't mean the cops aren't aware of them.

"Even though it's a terrible thing they're doing, there's just no law against it at this point," says Officer Dan Walden. "Besides, my picture is pretty accessible on the Internet.

TRICKY DICKY

V.P. caught with a banana in [redacted] pocket

By DEBBIE DOOLEY

VICE PRESIDENT Dick Cheney turned 20 shades of red when a practical joke intended to make his manhood look absurdly massive backfired.

The humiliating drama unfolded at a $25,000-a-plate Republican fund-raiser attended by some 240 supporters at Philadelphia's upscale Benito's Baby Backs & Sushi restaurant.

According to sources, Cheney picked a banana out of a fruit bowl, stuck it in his right pocket, and whispered to a Secret Service agent, "Watch me get a rise out of the wife."

The Vice President then tried to make his way across the room to spouse Lynn Cheney, who was nursing a cocktail while chatting with the wife of a Saudi oil magnate, eyewitnesses say.

Just then, a lady fat cat lurking nearby shouted: "Dick, for goodness sake – we BOTH know that's a banana in your pocket, so cut the crap, will you?"

"The Vice President was stunned," says an aide who requested anonymity.

"But it was supposed to be a joke – he wasn't actually trying to impress anyone.

"From the look on his face, he must have felt about two feet tall.

"I'm not telling you who the lady was who caused the ruckus, but suffice it to say she's powerful enough to have gotten away with it," says the aide.

"Two minutes later, I saw the Vice President hustling Mrs. Cheney out the door, and I can't say that I blame him."

REAL-LIFE

By SCOTT STEVENS

IF YOU think you have trouble paying your bills, just be glad you're not Samuel Cash. The 54 year old milliner has been ordered to pay off the U.S. national debt — which stands at over $7 TRILLION.

Cash incurred the debt when President Bush was on a campaign tour, and his nephew, Fred, asked Bush the following question: "Mr. President, my Uncle Sam is a millionaire and says he's disturbed by the big budget deficits that have occurred since you took office. What should I tell him?"

PRESIDENT IN BED. Bush's answer [illegible]

Bush was upset by the question, and after the meeting, he went up to an aide and said, "Hey, that guy who's Uncle Sam — if he's so upset, let's get [illegible] millionaires to pay off the debt."

"Bush confused 'millionaire' with 'billionaire,'" Cash says.

Bush's aides did some checking, and amazingly, discovered that it would be legal to treat the deficit as "Uncle Sam."

When Cash found out the news, the first thing he did was investigate how big the debt was. "I figured it was about $15,000," he says.

But then he learned the debt was $7 trillion.

"My heart just went right into my mouth," Cash says.

Cash immediately asked his boss for a raise. "I told him I had some unexpected expenses."

The boss gave him a $2 an hour raise, but Cash says, even that doesn't begin to cover the debt. "I've had to take a second job," he says.

The U.S. population is close to 300 million, which means that each citizen's share of the debt is over $23,000.

"I'd have trouble even paying that," Cash says. "But I'd do it, for my country.

"But 7 trillion — I don't know where I'm going to come up with that kind of money."

To make things worse, the national debt increases by an average of $1.73 billion per day. "So as hard as I work, I never seem to catch up," Cash says.

Cash says that the hardest part was telling his wife, Minnie.

"When I said 'Honey, I owe 7 trillion dollars,' Minnie hit the roof. She screamed 'How many times have I told you to quit that stupid poker game?'"

Figuring he'll never pay off the debt just by working, Cash has been pouring all his money into lottery tickets.

"I won $680 the other day," he says. "But I spent $600 to do it."

"Uncle Sam" has considered several other options. "I thought about robbing a bank," he says. "But I'm an honest citizen. Besides, even banks don't carry that kind of dough."

He also thought about leaving the country. "But I love it here, and anyway, the Bush administration told me they would find me, and extradite me back here.

"I also thought about putting the debt on my credit card. But my limit is only $5,000."

Now, Cash says, he's tossing around the idea of disowning his nephew. "Then I won't be 'Uncle Sam' anymore, and so I won't be on the hook for the money. I love my nephew, but there's a limit."

But for now, Uncle Sam is doing the best he can. "I know I owe my country a lot," he says. "I just [illegible]

America must apologize to France

THE TIME has come for America to apologize to our oldest friend.

Not England — that was our nation's first enemy. I refer to France, which came to our aid in the American Revolution, in the form of that most gallant of heroes, the Marquis de Lafayette.

When "President" Bush and his cronies ran around screeching like Chicken Little that Iraq had weapons of mass destruction and "we know where they are," the French calmly assured us that [redacted] little threat.

I highly recommend that every reader visit the City of Light [redacted] once. The French have so much to teach us — but we cannot count upon a warm welcome unless [redacted] learned our lesson.

"President" Bush must apologize at once — on his knees, if necessary — to French President Jacques Chirac.

Perhaps this lesson in humility will be good for our loftier arrogant nation. There are

SPOILED BUSH TWINS BEG DADDY:

'We want a ride on the space shuttle... before you get booted from office'

By LANA TUBBS

SPOILED rotten Jenna and Barbara Bush are begging their daddy to give them a ride on a space shuttle before he's booted out of office, and they aren't taking "no" for an answer.

"The twins pout something awful when they don't get their way, so the President almost always gives in," says a senior administration official who professes to be appalled by the Bush girls' "selfish demand."

"It costs $60 million to launch a space shuttle, but do they care? No! All I've been hearing is, 'Please, Daddy! Please! We'll be good. We won't ever get drunk again!', and 'Hurry, Daddy! Hurry! The election is just a few weeks away. If we don't go now, we'll never get to go! You've seen the polls!'

"It's enough to make you sick. Those children need to grow up."

No word yet on whether the President will authorize the launch that, according to the insider, "would be a short trip, just a few orbits and back to Earth again."

But another White House source says there's a good chance the twins will get their out-of-this-world trip because the President needs to focus on his campaign and "he'll do just about anything to get these brats out of his hair."

WHITE HOUSE PUTS MAFIA HIT ON FAHRENHEIT 911 DIRECTOR

By MARK MILLER

A MOB informant has made the extraordinary claim that President Bush ordered a Mafia hit on liberal filmmaker Michael Moore.

"I know it's true because I was there when the order came in and I was told to 'take care of the matter,'" explains Paulie "Back-of-the-Head" Martello, a pseudonym.

"I can't tell you how I'm going to do it, but perhaps my name will provide a clue."

Moore's current hit documentary, Fahrenheit 911, focuses on what Moore characterizes as the warm relationship between President Bush and the Saudis, specifically the Bin Laden clan, as well as the "fake" reasons that Bush decided to send his country to war in Iraq.

According to White House insiders, the movie – particularly its popularity – enraged the President.

The MaFiosa says that Moore will be "the seventy-fourth hit Bush has ordered since taking office. He also claims the Mafia provides Bush with special Executive Discount Cards. For every ten hits Bush orders, he gets one murder for free.

Michael Moore, in response, now travels with five bodyguards, never reveals his travel itinerary, and is attending Overeaters Anonymous meetings in an attempt to lose weight to make himself a smaller target.

BUSH TRIED TO ENROLL IN ELECTORAL COLLEGE

By BERNIE PYLE

BEFORE running for President in 2000, Gov. George Bush knew so little about national politics that he tried to enroll in the electoral college.

That's the claim of a top aide to Bush when he was governor of Texas.

"Republicans approached him about running for President, and Bush told them, 'I'd love to, but I'm not qualified. I've never gone to electoral college.'

"The Republicans were aghast. But Bush went away and decided he wanted to run after all, says the aide. "The next day he came in with a list and said, 'Enroll me in the electoral college. These are some courses I would like to take.' "

In reality, the electoral college is the voting system that determines who becomes President. Each state gets votes based on its population. In 2000, Bush became president even though he got a half million fewer votes than Al Gore, because he won a majority of votes in the electoral college.

Among the classes were "Introduction to Starting a War," "Advanced Deficit-Raising," "Geography 101," and "How to be a Compassionate Conservative."

Bush was relieved when he learned he didn't have to go to electoral college. "He was afraid he'd have to read a book," says the aide. "Instead, Bush said, 'I'll just learn on the

JOHN KERRY IS POSSESSED — BY AL GORE!

THERE'S a chilling reason why Democratic candidate John Kerry has such a droopy face, vacant, zombie expression and boring manner: He is hypnotized and possessed by Al Gore!

That's the bizarre assertion of a leading expert in the occult, who claims the former Vice President controls Kerry "like a sock puppet" and is responsible for every word that comes out of his mouth.

"Gore knows this is the only way he can fulfill his destiny — to govern America," declares researcher Albert Gerkin of Washington, D.C.

"Trying to run again would be fruitless, so he intends to win the presidency through Kerry."

Sen. Kerry's current personna baffles observers who know him well.

"The John Kerry I know is a fun-loving, cheerful guy with a great sense of humor and a warm, outgoing personality," says a longtime friend.

"The man I see on the podium — dull as dishwater, speaking in a monotone that puts isn't the same guy I've known all my life.

TIBETAN monks taught Gore to control and possess Kerry.

"The mannerisms — or lack of them, the stiff movements, are all not him."

Gerkin notes that for months after Gore's defeat in the bitterly contested 2000 election, the Tennessee politician vanished from the public eye.

"Reliable sources tell me that Gore spent that time in Tibet, where he went to 'find himself' and come to grips with the crushing blow," Gerkin says.

"Remember, Gore had spent eight years waiting in the wings and believed himself to be Bill Clinton's rightful heir. He campaigned with all his heart and won more votes than Bush, yet lost the election."

mat, like The Shadow of radio fame, Gore learned ancient techniques for hypnotizing [redacted] at a distance.

"He can enter a person's brain and control their body," Gerkin claims.

"At first he used the trick only to get his wife Tipper to [redacted] more in bed — then he realized he could use it to achieve his life's goal."

The researcher claims Gore took command of Kerry earlier this year, as the candidate unexpectedly pulled ahead of then-frontrunner Howard Dean.

"Dean's personality was too strong for Gore to dominate, so he picked the more pliable Kerry," Gerkin says. "Gore's know-how helped Kerry win the nomination."

A spokesman for the Kerry campaign calls Gerkin's theory "preposterous."

But a Democratic Party insider witnessed something that makes mind control seem plausible.

"At the convention, as Sen. Kerry delivered his speech, I felt myself drifting off, so I went to get a thermos of coffee," recalls the insider.

"In the hallway I saw Al Gore mouthing the words to Kerry's [redacted]. At first I thought he [redacted] mimicking him. Then I realized [redacted] the [redacted] first."

The former Vice President's creepy machinations could wind up backfiring.

"The trouble is that with Gore pulling the strings, Sen. Kerry is as lackluster a candidate as Gore was four years ago," Gerkin points out. "If history re-

KERRY'S COOKIE RUMBLES

– Wife's gross [redacted] Democrat campaign

By ANNIE VAN HORNE

SEN. John Kerry's presidential campaign is reeling in the wake of dozens of resignations tendered by staffers who say they were forced to eat Teresa Heinz Kerry's pumpkin spice cookies, a concoction that made them sick as dogs and sent at least one young woman to the hospital.

The gastrointestinal goodie that Heinz Kerry brought to the United States from her native Mozambique has since been branded as "gross" and "abhorrent" by Family Circle magazine, which analyzed up a batch without realizing the recipe that was sent in by an anonymous reader belonged to the billionaire ketchup heiress, who just weeks from now could be America's First Lady.

"It didn't take a test kitchen to tell me how bad these cookies were – I gagged on the first bite and threw up twice before stomach acid neutralized the taste in my mouth," says one of 65 campaign workers who are said to have jumped off the Kerry bandwagon and headed for the hills after Heinz-Kerry delivered a tray of cookies to an office and commanded, "Eat!"

WHAT A DOG!
Clinton to switch brains with horny pooch

By MARK MILLER

IN WHAT would be the first surgery of its kind in history, ex-President Bill Clinton has volunteered to have his brain transplanted into his pet dog – and his pet dog's brain transplanted into him!

"I've traveled the world, I've been President of the United States, I've had freaky sex with a 21-year-old intern," Clinton reportedly confided to an aide. "Frankly, since leaving office and patching things up with Hillary, I've been bored. This brain transplant thing will be my next great frontier. I gotta tell you – I'm excited!"

Performing the operation will be Dr. Joseph Sharkey, Chief Surgeon at New York's Paterson Neurosurgery Center just outside Manhattan. "It'll be assisted by a medical team of 15 surgeons and nurses, and three canine assistants," Dr. Sharkey states. "The procedure should take approximately 10 hours, barring any unforeseen complications."

The operation has been scheduled for next month and Dr. Sharkey has given both Clinton and Clinton's pet Labrador retriever, Seamus, post-operative activities that they will be expected to undertake daily.

Seamus is being asked to practice reading The New York Times, working on his memoirs, and apologizing to Hillary.

Clinton's instructions include eating out of a bowl on the floor, urinating on fire hydrants, and humping female dogs in heat.

A That is one of those silly myths that some gullible people believe. The true story is this: Washington never chopped down a cherry tree. He chopped down a beanstalk after he sold the family cow for some beans. A giant lived on the top, and George slew him with a sword called Excalibur that only he could pull out of a big stone. Then he found a magic lamp on the beach and a genie came out to give him two wishes. He wished to be the first president of the United States and he wished Ben Franklin would electrocute himself!

MISSION ACCOMPLISHED – NOT!

By JANE ANDERSON

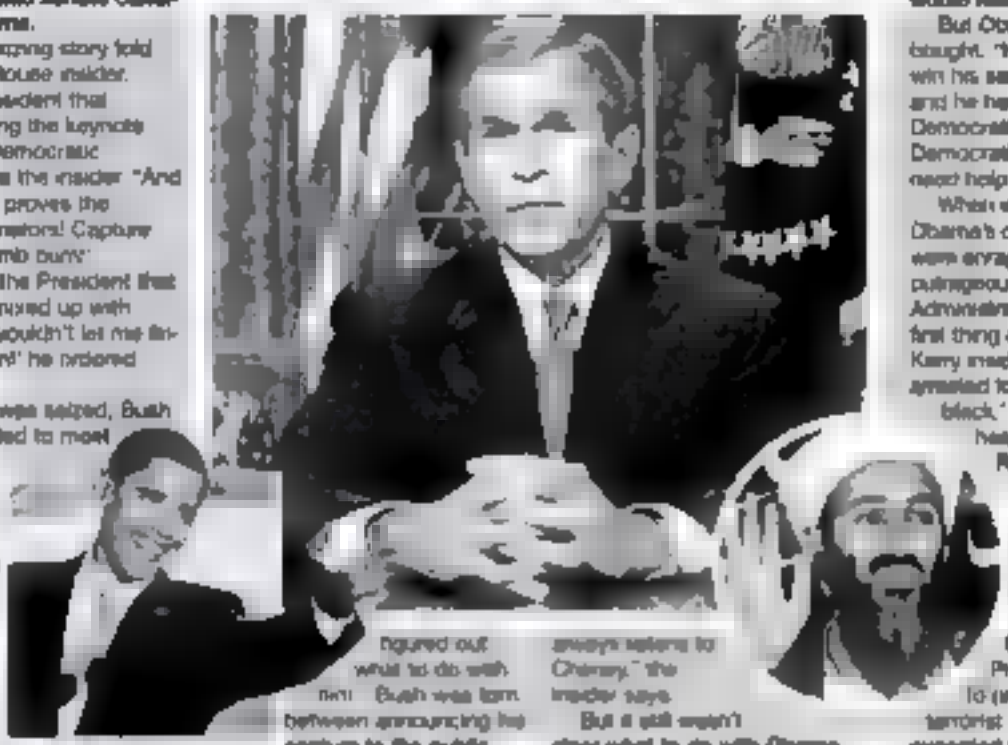
BUSH CAPTURES OBAMA – NOT OSAMA

PRESIDENT Bush was set to announce that he'd personally [redacted] the Leader, before realizing he actually caught Democratic senate candidate Barak Obama.

That's the amazing story told by a top White House insider.

"I told the President that Obama was giving the keynote address at the Democratic Convention" says the insider. "And Bush said, 'That proves the Democrats are traitors! Capture that terrorist scumbag bum!'

"I tried to tell the President that he had Obama mixed up with Osama, but he wouldn't let me finish. 'Bring him in!' he ordered me."



After Obama was seized, Bush decided he wanted to meet him face to face. When the President saw a young, handsome black man standing in front of him instead of a tall, skinny Saudi Arabian, Bush laughed. "No wonder we couldn't find you," he said. "Good disguise!"

The aides tried again to explain that Bush had the wrong man. But the President wasn't listening. "Obama, Osama, to-MAH-to, to-MAH-to," Bush said. "The difference between Obama and Osama is just 'B.' 'S.' "

The President ordered Obama to be kept in a secret cell until he figured out what to do with him. Bush was torn between announcing his capture to the public right away, or keeping him hidden until October, when it might have a big impact on the presidential elections."

Finally, word got to V.P. Dick Cheney, who emerged from his secret underground bunker and convinced Bush he was making a big mistake.

"Fortunately, the President always listens to Cheney," the insider says.

But it still wasn't clear what to do with Obama.

"Cheney thought they should just hold him until after the election, to avoid embarrassment. He said, 'Who's going to vote a young black male?'"

But an aide pointed out that Obama was a Democratic candidate for U.S. Senator in Illinois and many people would wonder where he was. Top aides in the Bush Administration pressured Obama not to say anything.

"They were offering him a cabinet position, a Supreme Court appointment — anything — if he would keep quiet."

But Obama wouldn't be bought. "He's almost certain to win his senate race in November and he has a bright future in the Democratic Party," says a Democratic official. "He doesn't need help from the Republicans."

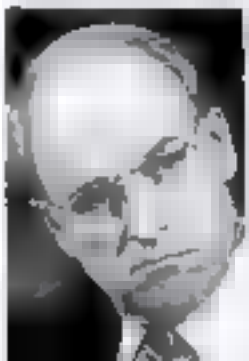
When word got out about Obama's capture, Democrats were enraged. "This is positively outrageous, and proves the Bush Administration doesn't know the first thing about terrorism," says a Kerry insider. "I've heard of getting arrested for DWB — 'driving while black,' but this is the first time I heard of being arrested for RWO — 'Rhyming with Osama.' "

But Republicans are firing back, and accuse the Democrats of purposely confusing the President. "The President is busy trying to protect the nation from terrorist attacks. He can't be expected to keep on top of every little letter in a terrorist's name. The Democrats know this, and purposely had the keynote speech given by an Obama 'sound alike,' to make Bush look silly."

Democrats denied the charge. "We didn't say anything the last time Bush got confused and arrested King Hussein of Jordan."

CHENEY & TERESA HEINZ KERRY TO ENGAGE IN 'CURSE-OFF'

– Whoever makes the other cry first, WINS!



THE MOST heated debate during the presidential campaign isn't likely to be between John Kerry and George Bush, but between V.P. Dick Cheney and Kerry's wife, Teresa Heinz Kerry. The two outspoken antagonists will engage in a "curse-off" – and the winner will be whoever makes the other one cry.

THE U.S. Department of Labor blew $3.6 million on a study to determine what kinds of jobs politicians and bureaucratic big shots will be best suited for when they finally leave office, and you won't believe what the boneheads came up with.

● Pilloried Sen. Ted Kennedy playing tambourine, maracas and cow bell in a retirement-home oldies band? That's the recommendation!

● Tongue-tied President George Bush posing as poster boy for the National Association of Literates' "English as a Second Language Program?" That's the recommendation!

● National Security Advisor Condoleezza Rice fronting for "Miss Laetitia's 1-900 Psychic Hotline?" That's the recommendation!

● Sen. Hillary Clinton "going to work in any capacity" for the national Celluite Sufferers Anonymous support network? That's the recommendation!

● Vice President Dick Cheney heading back to his old job at government-contracting Halliburton Corp.? That's the recommendation, even though it's common knowledge that Cheney never left Halliburton — he's still on the payroll and cutting deals for the corporate giant from his office in the White House!

"We're not making this up. This is what those idiots at the labor department came up with — and they're dead serious about it," fumes Marsha Muldoone of the Citizens for Bureaucratic Responsibility, in Washington, D.C.

Neither the Department of Labor nor the White House will discuss the study that was hidden from the public until a disgruntled clerk leaked a few copies to reporters.

But a White House source privately confirms that the study "was authorized at the highest levels of government," which strongly suggests that President Bush or senior officials had a hand in it.

Here are more recommendations that U.S. taxpayers shelled out a mind-twisting $3.62 million for.

According to the report:

● Sen. John McCain "would make an excellent candidate for President, but only if he can decide whether he is a Democrat, Republican, Independent or affiliated with some other party that hasn't been invented yet but still might tackle his fancy depending on which way the wind is blowing."

● Political mastermind Karl Rove "could make a killing in the 'fake news' business, giving The Daily Show's Jon Stewart a real run for his money, especially with audiences that don't have a sense of humor because Rove just lies about events and he isn't really all that funny."

● First Twins Jenna and Laura Bush "are naturals to go to Hollywood and . . . well, come to think of it, maybe they're better off with the $5,000-a-week allowance their daddy gives them."

● Shiny-lipped, ele-phant-eared Department of Defense assistant secretary Paul Wolfowitz "ought to star in a remake of the 1950's puppet show, Howdy Doody. But don't take our word for it," continues the Labor Department report. "Just get a picture of Howdy and compare it to Mr. Wolfowitz.

"If they weren't separated at birth, nobody was!"

50 [redacted] ESCAPE WHEN BORED GUARDS GO AWOL

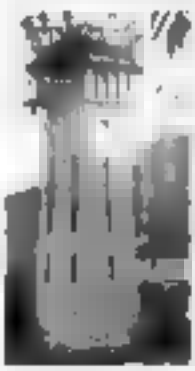
— leaving cardboard look-alikes at their posts!

A GROUP of prison guards got so bored they set up life-size cardboard figures in their watchtower and snuck out at work to get off.

"The job is duller than watching grass grow," says Barry Sizemore, 24, who was hired by Texas Two-Step Maximum Security Prison four years ago.

"There's nothing interesting to see. For eight hours, we look down at violent cons as they stab, fistfight, bludgeon, strangle and make passionate love to each other. It's so tedious we usually take turns napping.

"We never even get to shoot anyone. There's a barbed wire fence and armed supervisors who make the guys behave. Honestly over notices us. It hurts our sense of self-esteem."



Accordingly, Sizemore and co-worker Jimbo Jones, 28, constructed a couple of life-size cutouts and snuck out to a sports bar.

They were sipping white wine spritzers and nibbling peanuts when back at the prison two cons fired arrows from secretly made crossbows into the lower and "killed" the sentries.

"When we came back, they told us the other guards all rushed up to our shallow, giving the dirtbats a chance to riot and set fire to the place," says Jones.

"Even though 50 murderers and rapists escaped, it made us feel warm and fuzzy inside to know our co-workers really did care."

Sizemore and Jones are now looking for new employment.

10 SURE-FIRE WAYS TO AVOID WORK

By BETTY GRAY

HEY [redacted], is your wife nagging you to get off your butt and go get a job while you're perfectly happy enjoying the good life, munching on chips and swigging suds in front of the TV?

Don't worry. You can solve this dilemma by going on job [redacted] them!

Employment psychologist Dr. Susan Levine provides 10 tips to keep you blissfully work-free.

"There are strategies that show interviewers you'd rather stick needles in [redacted] eyes than do an honest day's work," explains Levine, who's based in Dallas.

"They may take a little practice, but the peace and quiet you'll get from the [redacted] you married will be [redacted] it." Simply follow these easy steps:

1 WEAR CASUAL ATTIRE. "Stride into the human resources office wearing a bathing suit or pajamas," advises Levine. "For footwear, it's appropriate to go with flip flops or slippers. You can accessorize with beach towels, sun glasses or a [redacted]."

2 SIT SLUMPED OVER SIDEWAYS IN THE CHAIR WITH YOUR LEGS DANGLING OVER THE SIDE. This slovenly posture indicates you are either mentally ill or were brought up by apes.

3 DON'T MAKE EYE CONTACT. Gaze out the window, glance around the office walls or close your eyes completely and say: "I'm just [redacted] to rest my eyes for a bit."

4 WHEN THE INTERVIEWER ASKS A QUESTION, your answer is always, "What was

5 IF THE INTERVIEWER ASKS YOU, "WHERE DO YOU SEE YOUR CAREER IN FIVE YEARS?", shrug and answer: "I don't even know what I'm doing tomorrow unless I consult the TV Guide."

6 THE INTERVIEWER ASKS WHY YOU WANT THIS PARTICULAR JOB. Answer: "Quite honestly, I [illegible] here because my wife has got some kind of [illegible] grudge against television."

7 LOOK AT YOUR WATCH EVERY 10 SECONDS. "This little trick [illegible] panics bored out of your [illegible]," says Levine. [illegible] interviewer asks if you have another appointment, answer, "Yes! I'm going [illegible] for the infomercial about [illegible] Ronco Chicken Rotisserie."

8 THE INTERVIEWER ASKS ABOUT YOUR HOBBIES. Answer: [illegible] aren't enough hours in the day for me to [illegible] hobbies. Watching TV and dozing [illegible] up most of my time."

9 THE INTERVIEWER ASKS TO SEE YOUR RESUME. Tell him, "I'm sorry, the dog ate it."

10 THE INTERVIEWER ASKS WHY YOU LEFT YOUR LAST POSITION. Answer: [illegible] I did the least amount of work [illegible], called in sick a lot, stole office supplies, took four-hour lunch breaks and called my [illegible] supervisor a jerkwad."

"Take this [illegible] and you'll never work another day in your life," says Levine. "Tell your [illegible] you [illegible] pass [illegible], but if they [illegible] call you [illegible] it must be because the economy is [illegible] still upset. Spirit of Julia Child haunting hamburger

CHEF extraordinaire Julia Child refuses to go away quietly. Her ghost has been haunting fast-food joints up and down the West Coast!

"I'd know Julia Child's voice anywhere!" says Kim Strom while having lunch at a Burger King in California's San Fernando Valley. "My grandmother used to watch her show The French Chef all the time.

"I just never expected to hear the words 'Bon appetit' coming from Julia Child's ghost while I was eating a Whopper!"

According to patrons in several [illegible], Child's ghost has been playing [illegible] tricks on unsuspecting customers while they [illegible] on their high-cholesterol cuisine.

"She nearly scared the pants off me," says Eddie Torres of Encino, Calif. "She knocked my wife's french fries on the floor and squirted ketchup on my tie.

"She said, 'If you're going to clog your arteries, at least do it with something good! Have a nice, juicy steak!'

"You've never seen my wife [illegible] fast — right out of [illegible] all the way home, screaming the whole time."

Managers in most of the haunted restaurants agree that their celebrity spirit-in-residence has been more trouble than she's worth.

"We lost a lot of business the first few days," says one manager. "People are still kind of spooked, but they're starting to come around. The most serious problem we've been having is that she's been steal

"Ever since Julia Child's ghost started showing up, the food is better around here," says a cook from that [redacted]. "[redacted] was giving a few pointers to the fry cook, but she kept knocking his supplies into the fry batter."

Customers in the inner-city joint have also been more receptive to their supernatural [redacted] chef.

Customer [redacted] Turner learned [redacted] lesson the hard way. "It really freaked me out at first, hearing that warbling voice over my shoulder while I was eating, so I ignored her. The next thing I know, she shouts, 'Bon appetite!' and dumped my Pepsi right over my head."

Managers at the eerie establishments are wondering how long the haunted hijinks will continue.

HOT BABES RULE AT CNN

RUMORS that CNN will soon change its name to The Very Attractive News Network (VANN) are causing excitement in the broadcasting industry.

Recent years have seen CNN broadcast a parade of pretty 20-something women anchors give or take a phenomenal female, which has led to speculation about the network's overtly capitalization on the situation.

But a source at CNN is quick to deny the allegation.

BIGFOOT TERROR ALERT!

Al Qaeda recruits radical group of creatures for missions in U.S.

AL QAEDA operatives have successfully recruited hulking Bigfoot monsters to help them launch terror strikes in the United States.

Stunned FBI analysts say the elusive creatures are primed and ready to unleash smallpox, rein, dirty nukes and even "bigfoot gas" on major population centers in the Pacific Northwest.

It's a shocking development, especially in view of the fact that — as reported in Weekly World News' issue of June 14, 2004 — some Bigfoots had already been recruited by the U.S. government to fight on our side in the war on terror.

"Even though these turncoats probably represent only a small percentage of Bigfoots, this is still a nightmare," a veteran FBI investigator told reporters at the agency's office in Seattle, Wash.

"Bigfoots have terrorized campers, hikers, hunters, Boy Scouts, runaways, explorers and adventurers for hundreds of years — and nobody has ever been able to capture one."

No one knows for sure how many Bigfoots are in the U.S., much less how many have signed on with terror kingpin Osama Bin Laden's Al Qaeda network.

But chilling intelligence suggests that as many as 50 of the 8-foot, 500-pound monsters are now working hand-in-glove with terrorist sleeper cells.

'If you spot a Bigfoot wearing a turban, notify the police'

"How Al Qaeda managed to get to the Bigfoots, much less fill them with hatred for the United States, is a mystery," says the FBI source. "But it seems likely that they manipulated the creatures in some way, perhaps using brainwashing, drugs and whisky."

Cryptozoologists agree that Bigfoots could easily be programmed to do the bidding of Al Qaeda.

"These creatures aren't what you'd call the sharpest knives in the drawer," says one esteemed expert. "I would expect that a couple of hot dogs and a cold beer or a candy bar would pretty much sway a Bigfoot to do whatever you wanted."

They could easily be trained to carry a bomb into a metropolitan area, or even cut loose with one of those brain-damaging farts that have been reported over the years by eyewitnesses who have survived them."

In a frightening development, the FBI has learned that at least two Bigfoots "with Bin Laden like salt-and-pepper beards" and "neatly wrapped turbans" have been sighted in Washington state.

"Coincidence? Not on your life," says the FBI source. "If those two things aren't working with Al Qaeda, I'll eat my 'CIA Sucks' cap — without ketchup."

If you spot a bearded Bigfoot with a turban on his head or he behaving suspiciously in any way you should notify the police immediately.

"I can't think of anything more dangerous than a Bigfoot who's been programmed to believe that old terrorist lie that he's got '50 hairy-chested virgins' waiting for him in Heaven," says the FBI source.

AMERICA'S [illegible]XIEST PSYCHICS

SIZZLING SERENA

Did Mama's evil cats [illegible] my hamster?

Dear Sonya: My hamster escaped his cage a few weeks ago and I'm afraid one of my mother's 15 cats got him.

If anything happened to Mr. Jeebers I'll just die — he was my best [illegible] and I've had him for two years. Did the [illegible] eat him, Sonya, or is he alive?

If he's alive, tell me where he is so I can catch him and put him back in his cage. — Loves Mr. Jeebers in Trenton, N.J.

Dear Mr. Jeebers [illegible] didn't escape [illegible] cage, dearie — he was sucked through a "pinhole breech" into [illegible] where creatures great and [illegible] want for nothing — [illegible] live in perfect bliss. He'll be sucked back through the pinhole a little later this year, so don't worry — you will see him again. Just remember that he's going to be in a foul mood for a few weeks while he reacquaints himself with a world where hunger, pain and death — basically, anything BUT perfect peace — reign supreme.

Who stole my cancer brother's money?

Dear Serena: Somebody swiped all the money that I've been saving to buy my brother a new off-road motorcycle so he can have some fun before he dies of cancer.

Why would somebody do such an awful thing, Serena? Please help me get the money back so I can buy the dirt bike before Joey [illegible]. — Good Brother in Lexington, Ky.

Dear Good Brother: [illegible] your dad [illegible] all of the money on Bosco and the woman who [illegible] [illegible] down [illegible] from you. But don't [illegible] I'm [illegible] you [illegible] personal check for $6,500 for the motorcycle, a [illegible] and [illegible]. And I've got more [illegible] news, too. I'm not at liberty to [illegible] you details, [illegible] suffice it to say [illegible] Sonya and I performed a little ritual and Joey no longer [illegible] owner. He's [illegible].

Make the voices in my head go away

Dear Serena: I hear voices in my head around the clock — seven days a week. And they don't think very highly of me because they keep telling me to jump in the lake by my house. The more I try to make them stop, the louder they get. They say, "Do it! Jump in the lake!", and, "Don't be stupid! The lake is where you want to be!" It's driving me nuts. I lost my job and I'm almost out of money, and the stress is too much. Please make [illegible] go away. — Tormented in [illegible], Ga.

[illegible] Tormented. The [illegible] want you to jump in the lake because your great grandfather sank 24 gold nuggets in there back in 1897. So get going, girl! It's worth $63,000 if you aren't afraid to get your feet wet. Hint: [illegible] a stick and poke around under the weeping willow on the west bank. When you hear a "thunk", dig it out. Just [illegible] out for water moccasins. Those guys can get nasty this time of year!

PERSONAL TO:

Overeater in Clinton, Miss.: Stop [illegible] yourself. [illegible] nipple rings [illegible] where you've been — on your [illegible] friend.

Unemployed [illegible], Alaska: Quit [illegible] rat race and write [illegible] bestseller. You'll [illegible] when [illegible] even be [illegible] yourself, but [illegible] you'll be happy [illegible] you're [illegible].

Lonely [illegible]: [illegible] There's [illegible] and a [illegible] is [illegible] you from [illegible] where you [illegible]. Then [illegible] change her [illegible] your name] like, [illegible] for all, if you [illegible] I mean.

[illegible] Like to Be [illegible]: Give it up and [illegible], or she'll end [illegible] postal on you!

[illegible] Addicted to Shoes, Tampa: [illegible] a cure, and in the [illegible] you [illegible] months of [illegible] quit, guys will [illegible] up just to meet you.

Let Serena and Sonya help you! Write: Sabaks, Weekly World News, P.O. Box 2040, Boca Raton, Fla. 33427-9808. We'll forward your letters to them. Don't send money. Their advice is free. Please note: Due to the huge volume of mail [illegible] Serena receives, they cannot respond personally [illegible] for your understanding.

WWN GIVES AWAY $1,000!

READING Weekly World News pays off big-time for two lucky readers who won a fabulous $500 cool cash each! We can't think of a better way to make a quick buck!

Our first winner, Robert Albert, of Bromfield, Ill., entered our "Name The Ugly Baby" contest. His entry, suggesting we name the unfortunate infant pictured above "Buster" was selected as the winner.

So, Buster it is. Smile for us, Buster! Oh, well. He already is! OK then.

Our next big winner is Debra Marchetti, of Montpelier, Va. Debra is our Super Survey Grand Prize Winner. She sent in a response to our reader survey of WWN covers and, out of tons of entries, we drew her as the winner. That's Pumpkin, by the way, in the picture with her.

And the following lucky runners-up will each receive a free year's subscription to Weekly World News:

Brad C. Bates, Pass Christian, Miss.; Anita Barnes, Cortez, Fla.; Dr. Harrison Beard, Toms River, N.J.; Denise Bethel, Crescent City, Calif.; James Bultemas, Bryant, Ala.; Bonnie Cannon, Myrtle Beach, S.C.; Doris Brown-Bremer, Maine; Nancy V. Thanks to all our readers who shared their thoughts with us. Keep on reading and keep an eye out for more big contests. Who knows? Maybe you will be our next big winner!

Boss takes up offer to 'take this job and shove it!'

A SUPERVISOR at a Florida rolling pin factory did the unthinkable by taking up a disgruntled employee's request to "take this job and shove it."

"I was taking a quick catnap at my desk, when my boss walks in and fires me for no reason," says Harold McKinney, 46, who worked in the office. "I got so mad, I jumped on his desk, bent over, pulled my pants down, and yelled 'Hey Peterson, why don't you take this job and shove it!' "

And that's exactly what Mike Peterson, 43, did.

"It happened so fast," recalls Peterson. "I took our new 'Roller-Mater 2000' rolling pin, and simply accommodated his request. He was pretty surprised. It looked like the sword in the stone from that King Arthur movie."

After the incident, Harold decided not to press assault charges. "It was too embarrassing. But, I have learned a lesson. Next time I get fired, I

Kids raised in aquarium so they can become Olympic swimmers

AN OHIO [redacted] with Olympic swimming aspirations for their three children has been raising them in a large water-filled aquarium for the past five years.

Duke and Dorothy Sellers had a 5,000 gallon aquarium constructed and placed in their modest split-level home's living room. Their three young children, Bobby, Suzie and Flipper have not been out of the huge tank since it was installed in 1999. The weight of the aquarium is so great that the Sellers had to install additional support beams in their basement.

The children are home schooled by Dorothy, and are required to tread water during each of her subject lessons each afternoon. After their lessons they are required to swim continuously until bedtime at midnight. The aquarium then sleep while floating on their backs. The children subsist on raw fish and dough balls that their parents toss in the water three times a day.

"I went to Sea World once when I was younger, and I observed how the dolphins lived and trained and ate," explains Dorothy, a recovering alcoholic.

"I want my kids to swim like dolphins so it only made sense to treat them as such."

Duke adds, "I realize that we are choosing an unconventional way to raise our children, but we just want them to achieve our goals, I mean, their goals of becoming Olympic swimming champions."

SHOCKING NEW STUDIES REVEAL:

YOUR NEIGHBOR IS FANTASIES ABOUT

— and the people you hang around

A MASSIVE new federal study proves it beyond the shadow of a doubt: Most of your neighbors, friends, relatives and co-workers are selfish clods who don't give a damn about you and your well-being — they're only out for themselves.

Not only that, many of them practice extremely poor personal hygiene and carry germs, viruses and even sex diseases that they can pass along to you with a hand-shake or a friendly pat on the back.

And if you think that's shocking, get this: According to the National Institute for Mental Health in Bethesda, Md., which funded the study, most of the neighbors and friends you come into contact with on a regular basis have frequent and lurid sex fantasies that involve you in graphic detail.

"We never suspected this — I was floored

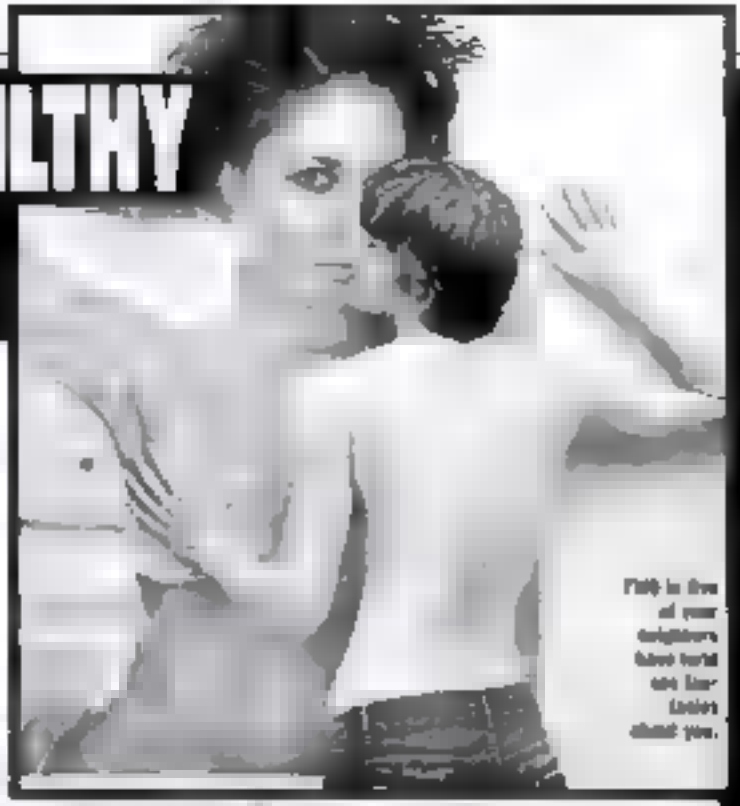
HAVING FILTHY YOU

By [redacted]



Pals in five of your neighbors have told us how much you...

are selfish slobs!

...ist our findings," says Dr Kenneth Kunehoven, who headed the study. The Washington [redacted] calls "a real eye-opener."

"Most men and women go through life without much of a thought for anyone but themselves. They are deeply involved in sexual fantasies – and not in the normal practice of seriously pleasing sex. It gets worse: they are as filthy as gangsters. It's enough to make you want to live in a plastic bubble."

Here, from the study, are things you might not know about the people closest to you. Be forewarned.

If you have a weak stomach, fine sensibilities or are easily offended, don't read them alone.

● Unbeknownst to you, two of five of your neighbors, friends, relatives and co-workers have police records involving serious crimes that may include burglary, breaking and entering, sexual shoplifting, car theft, domestic violence, public drunkenness or sexual assault.

● Three in five have stolen something of significant value from an individual or their employer in the past six months.

● Four in five have slept with someone to further their career or financial well-being, but will be prepared to deny that they would sleep with someone down the road if they felt like they would benefit from it.

● Three out of five often think about killing someone they just met for no other reason than the person talked them off.

● Two in five have, in fact, attempted to report people to police or the Internal Revenue Service for crimes they didn't commit.

● Two in five have lied on job applications and resumes that involve you.

● Three in five have bought engagement rings, bridal bouquets or sex aids on their [redacted] and can easily pass it along to you.

● Two in five haven't brushed their teeth in weeks.

● Three in five have used a bathroom in the past two hours but didn't wash their hands.

Rich people secede from union!

[redacted] of wealthy Americans is planning to secede from the Union because they hate living in the same country as poor people, says the group's spokesman.

"We shouldn't have to look at them," says Arnold Merriweather IV, who won a multimillion-dollar lawsuit against a razor company when he nicked his face shaving.

"We're just better. We have bigger houses, nicer cars, expensive stuff and get servants to do all the crummy jobs."

The members of Money Makes You Superior (MMYS) say they should not be subjected to residing within 1,000 miles of those who are poor or even middle class.

"It's just so taxing to mingle with commoners," sighs Merriweather. "We're forced to look at economical automobiles and homes with fewer than 20 bedrooms. The money-challenged eat food like meatloaf and instant mashed potatoes that would make us rich people puke. We wear the finest designer clothing, while they buy knockoffs. I hear they even shop in horrible places called 'Dollar Stores.'"

Members of the exclusive MMYS club – limited to those worth $100 million or more – are in the final phases of purchasing their own country in a top-secret location.

"The residents who already live there will simply have to move," says Merriweather. "We'll

This week the spotlight is on relations. Family members and a neighbor play an all important role in need of your assistance. That period does not favor moves or quick decisions, especially with a friend or lover.

Sunday is your best day for making positive changes in your life. Time spent in a romantic location with your beloved will bring you a delightful surprise.

GEMINI

May 21 - June 20

This week is a good time to break into new fields, enroll in home study classes and or college. Communication skills and computer or linguistic skills are highlighted, and they're always in demand.

Signs indicate that this new-life trend will continue into next week, and in some areas will be dependent on another's cooperation. Luck will surface on the fifth day of the week.

CANCER

June 21 - July 22

Your love life could be dynamite if you'd relax and let it be. Turn on the charm and see where it gets you. This is the best week to pay attention to someone close to you.

Risky business should be avoided at all costs, but a quiet little investment could bring you a tidy return before the year's end.

Pay attention to the color black.

LEO

July 23 - Aug. 22

Even though you may feel your life is unfulfilled and unrewarding, a change this week is not wise. Set short-term goals for yourself right now before making decisions.

Plan on home for solitude on the weekend. Hang on to your temper and don't let the road get on.

A heavy person who came knows helps as a good way on your future.

VIRGO

Aug. 23 - Sept. 22

Early in the week you may get good news in the mail — an unexpected windfall with no strings attached.

Although Thursday will be your best day, beware of a potential misunderstanding with your mate, children or neighbors.

Friends are helpful over the weekend, and you are able to put the finishing touches on a much-delayed project.

HOROSCOPE

LIBRA

Sept. [redacted] – Oct. 22

Your prospects for accomplishing goals are exceptional this week. You have excellent instincts where money is concerned, whether it is redoing the household budget or investing some for gain.

Someone you know with the letters "U" and/or "A" in their name will help.

Family problems occupy your time on Saturday.

PLUS!

Find your fate for the coming month on the next seven pages!

SCORPIO

Oct. 23 – Nov. 21

The realization of a long-term financial ambition could be a reality this week, when information comes your way that puts you on the inside track.

A midweek lunch date could turn into a romantic interlude, which could lead the way to a permanent and rewarding relationship.

Listen to what a child says. He or she knows more than you suspect.

PISCES

Feb. 19 – Mar. 20

Try your luck this week with a new hairdo or outfit. This is a good period for making positive appearance changes.

You find yourself a bit moody on the weekend, so cheer yourself up with the purchase of a small luxury.

An attractive member of the opposite sex will make lasting feelings known. You'll be both flattered and flustered. Enjoy!

SAGITTARIUS

Nov. 22 – Dec. 21

The week finds you with an extraordinary amount of energy. Use it or lose it. This is your opportunity to turn it into something positive. Watch your driving, though. Wear seat belt and obey rules.

Often, you're an impulsive romantic who truly believes in love at first sight. But don't be tempted to make a move of this moment commitment, which you could live to regret.

WHITE WITCH SPELLS CAN MAKE YOU RICH

By [redacted]

'You will attract great wealth like a magnet,' says world famous sorceress

YOU CAN be rich beyond your wildest dreams — using White Witch Spells guaranteed to change your life forever!

Handed down from countless generation to generation of good witches, these spells bring prosperity to all who use them, says world famous sorceress Theodosa Falcon.

"If you perform these spells conscientiously you will attract great wealth like a magnet."

Here are Falcon's top three spells.

To Attract Wealth Through Earnings

Gather these supplies: An object for growth to compliment your work or art — a photo of your artworks for earning money, for example; your family home; or a traveler's talisman artifact item that symbolizes the flow of good will into your life, like a gift.

You'll also need a green candle, a silver object and sandalwood oil.

SERENA will help you become a money "money magnet."

During the New Moon place all the items on your desk, anointing the candle with the oil. Light the candle and chant seven times:

My hands create the wealth I crave. For work I do I am repaid. In kind I earn for that I yearn. I yearn for work to lead to loot.

To Attract Wealth Through Winnings

A simple spell, the only supplies you'll need are a money box or cloth bag containing three copper coins and a potted plant with dark green leaves. On the eve of a full moon lay the box or bag in the pot with the plant and chant the following nine times:

Blessed lady, lady of luck, Jackpot I desire, I desire from luck. Luck be a lady bring me my pelf, pile up my coffers, fill them with wealth.

Repeat this every day until the moon wanes.

To Attract Wealth Through Marriage Into Money

This spell guides you to places where wealthy singles gather and casts a net around your prospective spouse so you can reel him or her into your embrace — and the riches will follow.

You'll need an apple, a pink candle, red rose petals and your photograph.

Remove enough apple core to hollow a holder for the candle. Then place them on the plate on a table near your bed.

Arrange the rose petals in a circle around the apple. Each morning upon rising chant the following three times:

Cleave to my side a gentle man or gentlewoman of gold, with love for my heart and wealth for my brood.

Fate will soon guide you toward a meeting with the spouse of your dreams.

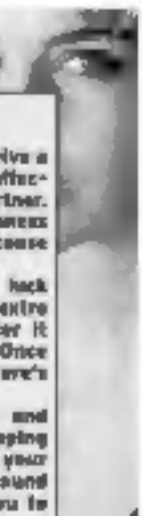
YOUR TAROT FORTUNE:

Key to the card you picked on Page 54



1 5 of Coins: LONELINESS

Love: Possessiveness tends to solitude, as you will soon find out if you don't give a little space in your relationship. Everyone needs a little "me time," so don't disallow it.

Money: Worrying about the future will only make it worse. A small indication of something to come will have you frazzled, but don't let it absorb too much of your time.

Health: You are your most precious possession, so take care of yourself.

2 8 of Swords: INDECISION

Love: Somehow you always seem to attract unwanted attention. You can't help it that you're so beautiful, so just learn to deal with it.

Money: Nothing seems to be going your way right now. Just drop whatever project your working on and move on to the next for a better run of luck.

Health: Low-carb or low-fat? After reading up on each one, you still don't know which one to try. Be

3 The World: WISDOM

Love: Family and friends will feel comfortable with and approve of a new love interest. The relationship may seem like it's going too fast, but it will work out just fine.

Money: You have the ability to come and go as you choose, but don't abuse the privilege. Put your time in or else you'll eventually be punished.

Health: You don't like to be told what to do, but it will be beneficial to you if you follow advice given

4 7 of Wands: VILLAIN

Love: An argument has gotten out of hand and you may think it would be easier to avoid the situation than face it head on. Be the bigger person and you'll gain more respect.

Money: Drop a couple coins in the cup of a homeless person. A little kindness goes a long way, and will be rewarded.

Health: Be brave. Be tough. Face those challenges with unhindered spirits. Dive into a new

5 4 of Cups: LUXURY

Love: You will receive a wealth of love and affection from a dear partner. Bask in this lavishness and be pampered, because it won't last forever.

Money: A run of luck has you coming into extra money. Don't squander it on frivolous things. Once you've wasted it, there's no getting it back.

Health: Boredom and distraction are stopping you from achieving your goal. Take a look around and see what got you to

FRANCE MAKES HANKY PANKY MANDATORY!

By MARK MILLER

THE FRENCH will now be notorious for one more thing besides stinky cheese, an aversion to bathing, and idolizing Jerry Lewis – they've just made adultery mandatory.

France's senate and national assembly passed the bill unanimously and it becomes effective immediately. Prime Minister Jean-Pierre Raffarin explains, "Ninety-three percent of all married French couples are already involved in adulterous relationships, so it was a simple matter of bringing the remaining seven percent up to speed."

The French see adultery as having many benefits, including:

- Freedom to do what one wants and with whom.
- More gifts for the kids around holiday time.
- More business for the hotel and restaurant industries.
- Always having a willing partner when one's husband or wife has a headache, is sick, is traveling, or is simply not in the mood.

According to the terms of the just-enacted National Adultery Act, any husband or wife found not engaged in adultery will be subject to a jail sentence of one to three years and a fine of up to seventy thousand francs.

Not every Frenchman, however, is overjoyed with this new law. Cabdriver Maurice Dunnller complains, "Putting the old 'Trouser Baguette' to my neighbor's wife was much more fun when I had to sneak around. Now it's just RATWOMAN!

By NICK JEFFRIES

ON THE heels of the blockbuster summer hit Catwoman, starring stunning beauty Halle Berry, producers are working on a new flick called Ratwoman.

Insiders say Oprah Winfrey is the top contender in the running to play the crime-fighting rodent.

"It's going to blow your mind when you see Oprah stuffed into the skin tight leather outfit," says producer Samuel Muldoon of Fotofinish Films.

"We even joked about calling the picture Fatwoman because it makes Halle Berry's Catwoman look like she's from Somalia."

The plot, says the producer, will be as exciting and riveting as the tale of Catwoman. The details haven't been completely ironed out, but the plot goes something like this:

Mousy, sensitive artist Prudence Philpot works as a graphic artist for Fountain of Youth, a mammoth beauty company on the verge of launching a revolutionary new weight-loss product called Shrink Link.

Prudence — who has devoted her life to working day and night in the rat race to make her bosses rich — accidentally discovers the secret side effects her evil employer (reportedly to be played by Sharon Stone) is keeping from the public. She vows to tell the world that if hordes of obesity forever — a fate she knows only too well.

But before Prudence can take action, she suffers a fatal asthma attack from years of breathing toxic anti-fat fumes.

A mystical rat named Ben — with ancient ties to the New York City subway system — appears and brings her back to life. She is reborn as a whiskered woman with amazing superpowers and a taste for "rat-tails."

"That's when Oprah takes off her white lab coat and attaches rat tails to her hair. We estimate it will take approximately 90 production assistants to squash her blob body into the sexy Ratsuit."

Ratwoman sleeps by day and roams Gotham City by night. After darkness, she roars out of the Ratcave in her Ratmobile where she uses her superpowers to arrest evildoings. Sometimes she's assisted by her loyal friend Stuart Little.

Meanwhile, a detective named Don Lonewolf is doggedly pursuing her every move, fascinated by her transformation.

The handsome Lonewolf covertly watches his dream woman lick crumbs from the floor, nibble on Cheese-of-the-Month-Club selections, frolic with her catnip toys, play Mouse Trap and watch the film Willard as she waits for night as she emerges from the Ratcave to [illegible] villains, open cages for lab rats and use her razor sharp teeth to gnaw at arch enemies like Mousetrap Ellis and Weasle Nolan. Then she squeals away in the Ratmobile to thwart wickedness and injustice — as he looks on with poignant, unrequited love.

"Whereas it's not clear in the Catwoman movie whether Halle Berry uses the kitty litter box," says Muldoon, "in Ratwoman, we won't leave important questions like these unanswered."

Look for Ratwoman —

OPRAH will reportedly pour herself into a skin-tight leather outfit to play Catwoman, prompting producers to jokingly ask the film Fatwoman.

RENTED ELEPHANT SPOILS KID'S BIRTHDAY PARTY

— He did what came naturally

AN ANGRY mom is suing the Moscow Zoo, because the African elephant she rented for her daughter's birthday party pooped on her lawn!

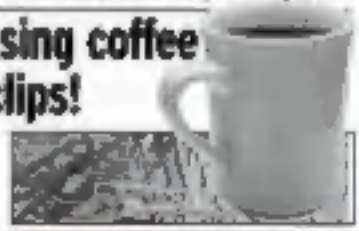
Alexandra Arkadyevich, 38, charges that the expensive party for her 6-year-old daughter Ludmilla was ruined when Boris the elephant unexpectedly dumped a 15-pound load of feces just yards from the table where the birthday girl and a dozen invitees were seated.

"We had spent weeks planning the party – there were clowns, jugglers and a magician," Alexandra told a Russian newspaper. "But after that elephant did his business, the little girls couldn't tolerate the smell and all of them begged to go home.

"We never even got to sing Happy Birthday or cut the cake."

Cash-strapped zoo honchos have recently begun renting out animals to the public for 1,000 rubles (about $34) per day to raise funds. Most personal appearances have been a hit – but little Ludmilla's mom vows never to rent an elephant again.

Worker kills boss using coffee spiked with paperclips!



A WORKER in Michigan is facing criminal charges for an office prank that went awry. Helena Arnold, tired of fetching her boss' coffee every morning, put five paper clips in the bottom of his mug in protest – and the old geezer choked to death.

"I have a college degree and he treated me like a servant," says Arnold. "I thought the paper clips might make the coffee taste funny, and maybe he would get the point.

"I wasn't trying to kill him."

Police are not so sure. "We've never had a death by paperclip be-
